ACC IN THE NCAA TOURNAMENT

The ACC was one of only two conferences with six or more teams selected to this year's 48-team field. In 2005, the ACC set a conference record with eight teams selected to the NCAA Men's Soccer Championship, while last year the league had seven picked.

Four of the six ACC teams receiving a bid earned a top 16 national seed and a first-round bye, while two league teams were named among the top three men's seeds. ACC Tournament and regular season champion Boston College received the top seed, while Wake Forest was seeded No. 2.

Since seeding began in 1994, the ACC has been awarded the top seed nine of the possible 14 years.

The ACC (Virginia Tech & Wake Forest) and the Big East (UConn & Notre Dame) were the only conferences in the country represented by two teams in the quarterfinals of the 2007 NCAA Tournament - marking the seventh consecutive year a team from the ACC played for a berth in the College Cup.

Last year, Duke, Virginia and Wake Forest advanced to the 'Round of 8,' making the ACC the only conference with more than one of its schools playing in the quarterfinal round.

The Demon Deacons appeared in their first-ever national title matchup.

This year marks the seventh consecutive year at least one team from the ACC was represented in the College Cup.

Virginia Tech made its first-ever trip to the NCAA College Cup, while Wake Forest returned for the second consecutive time.

Virginia Tech and Wake Forest advanced to the 2007 College Cup for the fourth straight year and the seventh time overall that the ACC had two schools in the semifinals of the NCAA Tournament.

Here is a look at past semifinals with at least two ACC teams participating:

- 1987: Clemson (national champs) & UNC
- 1992: Virginia (national champs) & Duke
- 1995: Duke (national runner-up) & Virginia
- 2004: Duke & Maryland
- 2005: Maryland (national champs) & Clemson
- 2006: Virginia & Wake Forest
- 2007: Virginia Tech & Wake Forest

Conference Comparison

Through the quarterfinals of the 2007 NCAA Championship, the ACC has advanced two teams to the College Cup for the seventh time in league history. In addition, the two ACC teams remaining are the most of any other conference in the nation. The ACC remains one of only two conferences in the country to have recorded at least seven wins over the tourney. Here is a look at how all conferences have fared through the first four rounds of 2007 NCAA Championship.
