SWIMMER OF THE WEEK

Christine Leupold, Purdue

SR, Richwood, N.J./Clearview Regional

Leupold collects Swimmer of the Week after posting four top-three individual showings and swimming on two winning relays. The senior captain recorded personal bests in the 50 (23.11), 100 (50.17) and 200-yard freestyle events (1:48.71) and the 200-yard IM with a time of 2:03.61. Leupold was also a member of two winning relays, as the 200 and 400-yard freestyle relays posted first-place times of 1:31.85 and 3:22.75, respectively. All of Leupold's times were NCAA provisional marks.

This is Leupold's first career Swimmer of the Week award.

DIVER OF THE WEEK

Carrie McCambridge, Purdue

JR, Lewis Center, Ohio/Olentangy

McCambridge collects Diver of the Week for the second time this season after the three-meter and platform competitions while finishing runner-up in the one-meter board at the Minnesota Invitational against Conference opponents, Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin. The junior scored seasons bests on the three-meter (523.70) and platform (410.40), both of which were well over the NCAA zone standards. Off the one-meter, McCambridge came in second by just 6.6 points with a score of 293.25.

This is McCambridge's third weekly award of her career.

Five Big Ten programs are ranked in the top 25 in the latest College Swim Coaches Association (CSCAA) released Wednesday, November 17. Wisconsin leads all Conference squads as the Badgers remained in the No. 10 spot for the third straight poll. Other teams appearing in the dual meet rankings include Penn State, Michigan, Indiana and Purdue. The Nittany Lions dropped one spot to No. 17, while the Wolverines moved up two places to No. 15. The Hoosiers dropped from No. 21 to No. 25, while the Boilermakers picked up three spots to finish 20th.

The CSCAA Dual Meet Poll is an indication of a team's ability to win dual meets throughout the season, but is not a predictor of a team's placement at the NCAA Championships. There will be nine polls released every two to three weeks during the season with a dual meet champion crowned in early March.

The next dual meet poll is set to be released Thursday, December 2.
