TERRIERS IN THE NHL ENTRY DRAFT

Since 1969, 157 players who have donned the scarlet and white Boston University sweater have been drafted by National Hockey League organizations. The Terriers have had the third-largest number of draftees of any school, trailing only Minnesota and Michigan. The number drafted is the most of any Hockey East school.

Eleven Terriers have been drafted in the first round. Included in this list is Rick DiPietro, who played for the Terriers during the 1999-00 season. In the 2000 draft, DiPietro became the first goalie ever selected as the number one overall pick when the New York Islanders made him their top choice.

In the 2015 Entry Draft, Jack Eichel was selected second overall by the Buffalo Sabres before three other Terriers were picked in the second round, giving BU four top-50 picks, more than any other school.

On the following pages is the list of Terrier players who have been drafted over the past 44 years.
