ACADEMIC SUPPORT

One of the real success stories for the University of California is the development and growth of a comprehensive academic support program for its student-athletes - the Athletic Study Center.

In 1984, campus officials and Athletic Department administrators decided that a greater emphasis needed to be placed on helping Cal student-athletes with their academic pursuits. The Athletic Study Center was thus born and charged with developing an academic support program geared to the needs of NCAA Division I student-athletes. It was a significant development for an academically-oriented institution such as Cal to recognize the special needs required for a modern student-athlete's success both as an athletic competitor and in the classroom.

The Athletic Study Center, which is housed within the Division of Undergraduate Education, is the tutorial and academic support program for the nearly 1,000 student-athletes at Cal. Centrally-located in the C,sar E. Chavez Student Center, the program provides a spacious and comfortable arboretum for quiet study, separate classrooms for individual and group tutorials and a computer lab for word processing and required course work.

Geared around the understanding of the amount of time student-athletes must devote to practice, training, physical therapy and team travel, the program creates an environment where students can cultivate good study habits, receive individual or group tutoring and obtain counseling from academic advisors.

The tutorial component promotes and enhances students' academic skills and progress by providing individual tutoring, group workshops, study groups, credit courses and intensive special programs. The program focuses mainly on freshmen and sophomores, and the center uses between 50-60 tutors per semester to guarantee that as many courses as possible are covered.

The advising component offers a broad range of services and programs to meet the unique needs and bipolar demands of student-athletes, including assistance in understanding and complying with University, college and NCAA rules, development of time management skills and resolution of personal issues unique to student-athletes. During the freshman year, advisors typically try to help student-athletes make a successful academic transition from high school, while during the sophomore year, they assist student-athletes in making decisions on appropriate majors and fields of study. For the final two years, advisors take more of an exiting approach, ensuring that proper academic progress is being made and referring juniors and seniors to areas on campus that can help with internships, graduate school applications and career planning.

In addition, the Athletic Study Center offers a six-week Summer Bridge program to ease the transition from high school to college. The primary components for the program include writing and math workshops, an advising workshop, study skills seminars and an evening tutorial program.

Two special areas offered are Peer Advising and the Exiting and Re-Entry Program. Peer advisors provide academic and campus life guidance for new intercollegiate athletes. They are selected from junior and senior student-athletes and assist in developing programs to further address the needs of student-athletes.

As a result of the overall success of its advising and tutorial programs, the academic performance and graduation rates of Cal's student-athletes have improved significantly, a source of pride for the University.

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Sandy
BARBOUR

Director of Athletics

In just over three years, Director of Athletics Sandy Barbour has molded the University of California Athletic Department into a model program that has achieved unprecedented success in the athletic arena while continuing to see its student-athletes perform at an exemplary level in the classroom and the community.

The 2006-07 seasons saw Cal capture team championships in rugby and men's water polo, as well as a school-record 11 individual titles. In addition, Cal posted a top-10 finish in the Directors' Cup standings - its fourth top-10 finish in the past five years. Since Barbour began her tenure in Berkeley on Sept. 15, 2004, the Golden Bears have earned seven national team championships and 23 individual titles.

Named one of the "100 Most Influential Women in Business" in the Bay Area by the San Francisco Business Times, Barbour has also been chosen a 2006 Woman of Distinction by the East Bay Business Times and as the 2006 National Association of Collegiate Women Athletics Administrators (NACWAA) Division I-

A National Administrator of the Year.

Barbour is an active member of several committees on both the national and conference levels. Currently chair of the Pac-10 Bowl Committee, she is also a member of the Pac-10 Executive Committee and the Pac-10 Television Committee and will serve as vice president of the conference for 2007-08. In addition, Barbour is on the NCAA Diversity Leadership Strategic Planning Committee and the NCAA Women's Basketball Discussion Group.

Prior to moving to Berkeley, Barbour was the deputy director of athletics at Notre Dame, serving as the university's senior athletic administrator under Athletic Director Kevin White from July 2003 to September 2005. She previously held an associate athletic director position there starting in 2000.

Barbour's career in intercollegiate athletic administration spans 26 years, beginning as a field hockey assistant coach and lacrosse administrative assistant at the University of Massachusetts in 1981. She has since served as assistant athletic director at Northwestern and in 1991 was recruited to Tulane as an associate athletic director.

While at Tulane, Barbour also worked for White - then Tulane's athletic director. At the age of 36, she was appointed Tulane's director of athletics when White left in 1996 for a similar position at Arizona State.

One of eight female athletic directors at NCAA Division I-A schools at the time, Barbour was chair of the NCAA Division I Student-Athlete

Reinstatement Committee and a member of the Division I Academics/Eligibility/Compliance Cabinet and the board of directors of the National Association of Collegiate Women's Athletic Administrators. She was also elected chair of the inaugural Conference USA committee for Senior Women Administrators and served on the league's executive committee. In addition, she chaired the executive committee for the 1993 NCAA Division I Outdoor Track and Field Championships hosted by Tulane.

Born Dec. 2, 1959, in Annapolis, Md., Barbour grew up in a military family. Her father was a career aviator in the U.S. Navy, and her family lived in various U.S. locations, as well as in Western Europe during her childhood.

Barbour graduated cum laude in 1981 with a B.S. degree in physical education from Wake Forest, where she was a four-year letterwinner and served as captain of the field hockey team. She also played two varsity seasons of women's basketball.

Barbour earned advanced degrees at both Massachusetts (an M.S. in sports management in 1983) and Northwestern's Kellogg School of Management (an MBA in 1991).

Between master's programs, Barbour served as assistant field hockey and lacrosse coach at Northwestern from 1982-84. She also held the position of director of recruiting services during that period, before being promoted to assistant athletic director for intercollegiate programs in 1984, a position she held until 1999.

THE UNIVERSITY

The roots of the University of California go back to the gold rush days of 1849, when the drafters of the State Constitution, a group of vigorous and farsighted people, required the legislature to “encourage by all suitable means the promotion of intellectual, scientific, moral and agricultural improvement” of the people of California.

These early planners dreamed of a university which eventually, “if properly organized and conducted, would contribute even more than California’s gold to the glory and happiness of advancing generations.”

The university that was born nearly 20 years later was the product of a merger between the College of California (a private institution) and the Agricultural, Mining, and Mechanical Arts College (a land grant institution). The College of California, founded by former Congregational minister Henry Durant from New England, was incorporated in 1855 in Oakland. Its curriculum was modeled after that of Yale and Harvard, with the addition of modern languages to the core courses in Latin, Greek, history, English, mathematics, and natural history. With an eye to future expansion, the board of trustees augmented the college’s Oakland holdings with the purchase of 160 acres of land four miles north, on a site they named Berkeley in 1866. (Cal’s Charter was introduced in 1868.)

This original tract was to be considerably expanded over the years. While the College of California was in its infancy, efforts continued in the state legislature to create a public educational institution, and in 1866 the legislature took advantage of the federal Morrill Land Grant Act of 1862 to establish the Agricultural, Mining, and Mechanical Arts College.

The college was to teach agricultural, mechanical arts, and military tactics “to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions in life.” Scientific and classical studies were not to be excluded but were of secondary importance.

The boards of trustees of the College of California and the Agricultural, Mining, and Mechanical Arts College decided to merge the two schools to their mutual advantage - one had land but insufficient funds and the other had ample public funds but no land-on the condition that the curricula of both schools be blended to form “a complete university.”

On March 23, 1868, the governor signed into law the Organic Act that created the University of California. The new university used the former College of California’s buildings in Oakland until South Hall and North Hall were completed on the Berkeley site (South Hall is still standing), and in September 1873 the University, with an enrollment of 191 students, moved to Berkeley.

Early in this period Phoebe Apperson Hearst, one of the University’s most generous benefactors, conceived of and financed an international competition for campus architectural plans that, she stipulated, “should be worthy of the great University whose material home they are to provide for.” The competition, won by Emile B,nard of Paris, brought Berkeley not only a building plan but worldwide notoriety.

At Oxford University, which at the time was strapped for funds, a Latin orator said, “There is brought a report that in California there is already established a university furnished with so great resources that even to the architects (a lavish kind of men) full permission has been given to spare no expense. Amidst the most pleasant hills on an elevated site, commanding a wide sea view, is to be placed a home of Universal Science and a seat of the muses.”

John Galen Howard, the supervising architect charged with implementing the B,nard plan, took advantage of his “permission to spare no expense” and developed a style of architecture that reinterpreted the grace, dignity, and austerity of classical lines to suit the California environment.

Some of the campus’s most elegant and stately structures were built during Howard’s tenure, among them the Hearst Memorial Mining Building (1902-7), the Hearst Greek Theatre (1903), California Hall (1905), Doe Library (1911-17), the Campanile (1914), Wheeler Hall (1917), Gilman Hall (1917), and Hilgard Hall (1918).

President Wheeler, a classical scholar and able administrator, attracted library and scholarship funds, research grants, and a distinguished faculty to the University, and its reputation grew, particularly in the fields of agriculture, the humanities, and engineering.

The University grew with the rapidly expanding population of California and responded to the educational needs of the developing state.

In the early 1900s the University’s new College of Commerce (now the Haas School of Business) trained students for export trade with the Orient and funneled graduates into industries and businesses throughout the state.

Nineteen members of the Berkeley faculty have been awarded Nobel Prizes for these and subsequent discoveries, as well as in literature and economics, for liberal arts kept pace with physical sciences.

In 1966, Berkeley was recognized by the American Council on Education as “the best balanced distinguished university in the country.”

SAN FRANCISCO BAY AREA

The San Francisco Bay Area is a major metropolitan area of approximately eight million people and one of the most scenic regions in the United States. The Bay Area includes the major cities of San Francisco and Oakland, as well as Berkeley, home of the world-renowned University of California. Just south is the city of San Jose and the Silicon Valley, home to many of the world's high-tech companies. The Bay Area also lies within easy driving distance of the high Sierra resorts of Lake Tahoe and Yosemite, the Monterey/Carmel peninsula, the world famous Napa wine country, and the spectacular Mendocino Coast.

Everyone knows "The City" - San Francisco - from countless photographs, movies and television shows that capture its magic. It is a city built on a series of more than 40 hills, offering panoramic views of every kind. The hub of a nine-county complex and the financial and insurance capital of the world, San Francisco has a resident population of about 800,000. San Francisco is situated on a 46.6 square-mile peninsula bounded on the west by the Pacific Ocean, on the north by the Golden Gate strait, and from north to east by the San Francisco Bay. The City has been named the world's top city twice by readers of Condé Nast Traveler and the top U.S. city eight times since 1988.

The San Francisco Bay is spanned by two landmarks, the Golden Gate and San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridges, and graced by four islands: Alcatraz, Angel, Yerba Buena and Treasure. The area is easily navigated by car, BART (Bay Area Rapid Transit), bus or ferry.

Located across the Bay Bridge from San Francisco, Oakland is a city of 400,000, filled with exciting attractions, stimulating arts and an ideal climate. Oakland's charm exceeds its man-made wonders, as its tumbling hills, vast forests, hiking and riding trails, beautiful lakes and numerous parks provide a natural escape for those who prefer nature over an urban environment.

Berkeley, just a 12-mile drive from San Francisco, is situated on 18.8 square miles with a population of 103,000 people. With its world-renowned university, global population and rich diversity of cultural arts, Berkeley reflects and affects the rest of the country.

In the Berkeley hills, Tilden Regional Park offers more than 30 miles of hiking trails, a public golf course, swimming at Lake Anza and plenty of places to picnic. As part of its wealth of cultural life, Berkeley boasts the award-winning Berkeley

Repertory Theatre, an opera company, a nationally celebrated symphony and a ballet company.

Just north of San Francisco, across the shining jewel of the Bay Area - the Golden Gate Bridge - lie Marin County and the North Bay. Stunning views of hills and mountains cascading into the bay and the ocean at every turn, Marin County boasts some of the most beautiful scenery in the world.

The Golden Gate National Recreation Area, the only U.S. national park in a major metropolitan area, is the largest urban park in the world.

Sports fans can see it all in the Bay Area - professional football (San Francisco 49ers and Oakland Raiders), professional basketball (Golden State Warriors), professional baseball (San Francisco Giants and Oakland Athletics) and professional hockey (San Jose Sharks) and outstanding collegiate competition.
