FAYETTEVILLE STATE UNIVERSITY

The history of Fayetteville State University began in 1867 when seven black men paid $140 for a lot on Gillespie Street and formed themselves into a self-perpetuating board of trustees to maintain the property as a site for a school. Funds from the U.S. Freedmen's Bureau were used to erect a building on this site. The institution was named the Howard School, in honor of General O.O. Howard, director of the bureau.

In 1877, by an act of the North Carolina Legislature, provisions were made to establish normal schools for educating both black and white teachers. It was thought that the $2,000 appropriated for the education of black teachers could be most effectively used if given to an established school. At that time the Howard School had been in existence for ten years and was therefore designated a teacher-training institution, its name changed by legislative act to the State Colored Normal School.

One early leader of the school was Charles W. Chesnutt who was chosen to head the institution in 1880. A prominent writer of fiction and a lawyer, he served as chief administrator for three years. Dr. Ezekiel Ezra Smith followed him as principal, beginning a fifty-year association with the school. During this time Dr. Smith served for a period as US consul-General in Liberia and Adjutant of the Third North Carolina Volunteer Infantry during the war with Spain. The school had no permanent home for 30 years until, under Dr. Smith's guidance; funds were raised to purchase 50 acres of land on Murchison Road. When Dr. Smith retired in 1933, the institution had grown to include 92 acres of land, eight brick buildings, and several cottages.

The school has been fortunate in the quality and energy of its leaders. In 1939 the institution became a four-year college, and in 1960 it became a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. The dream of seven black men in 1867 was culminated on July 1, 1972, when Fayetteville State became part of the University of North Carolina System.

Fayetteville State University's enrollment has increased rapidly in the past few years. The University has already reached the 2008 projection of more than 6000 students. A $45.5 million campus construction and renovation campaign is underway to accommodate additional students.

The mission of the Fayetteville State University intercollegiate athletics program is to bring positive recognition to the University through programs built on concepts such as excellence, integrity, and enthusiasm. The mission is integral to the university's educational mission and operates under the principles of amateur athletics and fair play, as established by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

The Department of Athletics provides equitable opportunities and support for male and female students to participate in intercollegiate athletics and to compete successfully in the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association (CIAA).

All activities hold paramount the academic, personal and physical welfare of the student-athlete, and emphasize physical fitness, self-discipline, teamwork, leadership, and the highest standards of ethics, sportsmanship and personal performance. Student-athletes are representative of the general student population and are afforded similar opportunities and treatment. Programs, staff and facilities reflect the excellence of the institution and contribute to the quality of campus life.

Fayetteville State is considered to have a few of the best athletic facilities in Division II Athletics. The Luther "Nick" Jearalds Football Stadium sports a newly installed synthetic turf field. FSU is the first school in the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association to install synthetic turf and the first Historically Black College and University (HBCU), as well as the first in North Carolina, to install the advanced GameDay Grass 3D synthetic turf.

The Felton J. Capel Arena is the home site for basketball and volleyball games. The Health, Physical Education, and Recreation Building boasts a 4,000-seat basketball arena, a volleyball court, an indoor walking track, an aerobics studio, racquetball courts, outdoor tennis courts, weight rooms, and an olympic sized swimming pool. The complex boasts four tennis courts with lights.

Dr. Edward McLean is entering his third year as Director of Athletics at Fayetteville State University and his 17th year in the athletic arena. He has proven himself to be an effective leader and administrator. "Success in the classrooms is just as important as success in the athletic arena," states Dr. McLean.

Dr. McLean was instrumental guiding Fayetteville State in acquiring the artificial turf in the football stadium and renovating the football locker room. The Broncos and its facilities have seen an increase in television exposure for football and basketball games.

In 2007, Dr. McLean established the 1,000 Broncos Annual Giving Campaign. Through fundraising initiatives the campaign is striving to raise one million dollars to fund student-athlete scholarships. To date, the 1,000 Broncos have provided ten full scholarships to deserving student-athletes.

As Athletic Director at Elizabeth City State University, the university was consistently ranked among the top two or three universities within the University of North Carolina system for its student-athletes graduation rate. In 2001 and 2002, Elizabeth City State University was ranked in the top ten nationally in the USA Today/NCAA Foundation Academic Achievements Awards program, recognizing the university's overall student-athlete graduation rate. Under his leadership the 2005 baseball and softball teams won the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association (CIAA) Championships.

Dr. McLean is widely respected by his peers and in 1996-1997 and 2004-2005; they named him CIAA Athletic Director of the Year. # ALPHONZA KEE

HEAD COACH

Alphonza Kee will join the FSU staff as the Head Coach after serving as an assistant men's basketball coach and recruiting coordinator with Grambling State University in Grambling, LA. Prior to the Tigers, Kee was the top assistant and recruiting coordinator for North Carolina A&T State University from 2003 to 2008 under Head Coach Jerry Eaves. He also has had coaching experiences at Western Carolina University (Cullowhee, NC), Winston-Salem State University (Winston-Salem, NC), Chowan College (Murfreesboro, NC) under Head Coach Bob Burke, and Fayetteville State University. While at Chowan College from 2000-2001, Coach Kee was the Head Junior Varsity Coach.

Kee began his playing career at Lamar Community College in Lamar, Colorado. While at Lamar, Kee excelled as a three-point shooter, and once hit a school record of ten three-pointers in one contest. Following his JUCO career, he signed at Fayetteville State University, where he lettered two seasons under former head coach Rick Duckett. Kee made the first field goal and three-point basket in Capel Arena in 1995 against Francis Marion University.

Kee also toured with Athletes in Action (playing in the Pro division) in Australia and in New Zealand before returning to America, where he began his coaching career as an assistant under his former coach and mentor, Duckett, at Fayetteville State during the '97-'98 season.

Alphonza Kee earned a Bachelor of Science Degree in Sociology from FSU in 1998 and a Master of Science Degree in Adult Education in 2008 from North Carolina A&T State University. He grew up in Northern California, but relocated to North Carolina where he graduated from New Bern High School in 1992.

VERNAL JAY MAYNARD

ASSISTANT COACH

Vernal "Jay" Maynard joins the Fayetteville State staff as an assistant Coach, after serving as head coach at Clay High School from 2005-08.

Maynard played at Winston-Salem State University, where he excelled as a three-point shooter, finishing his career second all-time at WSSU with 192 three-point field goals made.

A native of Jacksonville, N.C., Maynor is tied for the most three-point field goals made (95) in single-season WSSU history.

Maynard also played in the Tournament of America's on the Virgin Islands Olympic Team, where he played against NBA stars like Allen Iverson, Tim Duncan and Ray Allen.

Broncos head coach Alphonza Kee hopes Maynard can recruit those kinds of players to Fayetteville State.

"He'll be the chief recruiter," Kee said. "That'll be a big part of his role. He'll work with our guards as far as development."

Maynard was a player at WSSU, when Kee was an assistant for then WSSU head coach Philip Stitt.

"We both in essence played for the same coach in Rick Duckett," Kee said. "He came from a winning program at WSSU, which is a very good program in this league at every capacity. They won at a high level and they graduate at a high level, so he understands what I want on and off the court. He's a dynamic young man who is blue collar."

Maynard has also coached at Norcross High School in Norcross, Ga., Florida Community College in Jacksonville, Fla. and with the ABA's Jacksonville Jams.

Maynard earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in Sociology and Bachelors of Science in Sport Management from WSSU in 2004. He also got a Masters degree in Education Curriculum Instruction as well as a Master in Educational Leadership from the University of Phoenix.

"I'm extremely fortunate to have quality people of high character and integrity," Kee said. "They are passionate about college basketball, passionate about the CIAA and passionate about making an impact. I'm as lucky as I can be."

CHARLES JEFFERSON II

ASSISTANT COACH

Charles Darryl Jefferson II has an extensive and intimate knowledge of basketball in North Carolina. Jefferson will utilize his familiarity with the Tar Heel state in his first year as an assistant coach at Fayetteville State University.

Prior to joining head coach Alphonza Kee's staff, Jefferson was a graduate assistant at Grambling State University in Grambling, La.

Jefferson's duties included assisting with the daily operations of the basketball program, coordinating travel plans, handling all film exchange, assisting with game management and working individually with post players.

Since graduating from Mount Olive College with a Bachelor of Science degree in Recreation and Leisure Studies in 2006 - where he also played basketball for four seasons -- Jefferson has been busy.

The Jacksonville, N.C. native has made coaching stops at Nazareth College in Rochester, N.Y. and the Massachusetts College of Liberal Arts in North Adams, Ma., in addition to his time at Grambling.

Broncos' head coach Alphonza Kee said Jefferson's willingness to sacrifice to do what he loves made him an attractive candidate.

"He was a part of a (NCAA) Division II Elite Eight team," Kee said. "That is an extremely elite group; so he played at a high level. He's been a part of two Division III programs and one Division I program. I'm really impressed about the hunger that he possesses. He's a guy that is a role model to young people"

For the Broncos, Jefferson will handle a myriad of tasks.

"He's going to be diverse on the staff," Kee said. "He should really be able to relate with young people as far as the recruiting aspect goes. He's going to handle academics and he has started a study hall. Academics are big on his plate. As far as the basketball, he'll be dealing with the frontcourt players."

Kee said having Jefferson on staff was an honor.

"I'm extremely fortunate to have quality people of high character and integrity," Kee said. "They are passionate about college basketball, passionate about the CIAA and passionate about making an impact."

2009-10 BRONCOS PRESEASON OUTLOOK

With new head coach Alphonza Kee, the Fayetteville State men's basketball team has a fresh start.

Junior Ariel Robinson, a 6-foot-5, 200-pound guard from Coral Springs, Fla. and junior guard Jarrick Jones are the only returnees from the 2008 team that finished 13-15.

"Everything is new," Kee said. "We're going to establish the system and everyone has a fresh slate. The newcomers have to earn their spot day to day. We're going to establish our style of play and then bring the players in to play that style."

Last season, Robinson averaged 10.2 points per game, while finishing second on the team with 28 three-point field goals made.

"Anyone that has spent two years in the conference – it's so competitive – has been through the wars," said Kee. "We hope he continues to score the ball in double-figures like he has for us. He's seen the wars and he can show the rest of the guys."

Jones will play point guard for the Broncos. Kee hopes he is a stabilizing figure for his team.

"He's a junior and our floor general," Kee said. "We want him to lead with the ball in his hand and increase his ability to score the ball."

Kee and assistant coaches Charles Jefferson and Vernal Maynard will welcome eight newcomers.

FSU's first-year head coach highlighted junior college transfer Jamel Carpenter as a potential break-out player for the Broncos. Carpenter is a 6-foot-4 inch wing guard from Florida Community College in Jacksonville, Fla.

"He'll help us as far as experience, playing at a high level in junior college," said Kee. "He can score the ball, rebound the ball and do a little bit of everything for us. I expect him to come in immediately and lead us in a variety of categories."

The Broncos open the season at The University of North Carolina at Pembroke on Nov. 16 at 7 p.m.

The Broncos and regional-rival UNCP play a home-home with UNCP coming to Capel Arena on Dec. 14 at 7:30 p.m.

Kee said his philosophy for the future of Broncos basketball relies on aggression.

"Defensively, we want to play pressure basketball," he said. "We would like to press the basketball and constantly make the offense dribble, pass and shoot under duress. Offensively, we like to play a fast brand of basketball. We want to push the basketball and pressure the offense with a high pace."

FSU begins conference play when it hosts Bowie State on Nov. 23 at 7:30 p.m.

The CIAA tournament begins at Time Warner Cable Arena in Charlotte, N.C. on Feb. 22
