

GETTING READY FOR THE SEASON!

With the 2012 FSU softball season less than a month away, the word “excited” is an understatement for how we truly feel. With fall workouts and some holiday rest under our belts we are more than ready to start team practice on Jan. 16th to continue preparing for the Women’s College World Series.

As parents and fans I’m sure you all are just as excited and ready to get the season started just as much as we are, with Hawaii, LSU and other great teams on the schedule we are all in for a fun ride!

On a different note, I personally would like to apologize for my lack of blog updates. The things that we go through as a team are so much fun and great to share and I will be doing a lot more of it so that you all will get a true insight to who we truly are as a team, ultimately making it that much more special when we come out with the victory in the end.

With that being said, sit tight and expect an update from me next week!
