Terri Williams-Flournoy
Head Coach

Terri Williams-Flournoy was named the head coach of Georgetown's women's basketball program on August 27, 2004 and begins her first campaign as the Hoya leader. As head coach Williams-Flournoy is just the sixth women's basketball head coach in the history of the program. She returns to the Hilltop after beginning her collegiate coaching career with the Hoyas between 1992-1996.

Williams-Flournoy compiled a 12-year record of success as an assistant coach at Georgetown, the University of Georgia (1996-2002) and most recently Southwest Missouri State (2002-2004). She has been a part of nine programs that have made NCAA Championship appearances including a Final Four (1999) and two regional finals appearances (1997, 2000) with Georgia, and Georgetown's "Sweet Sixteen" run in 1993. Overall Williams-Flournoy's record as an assistant coach was 251-116.

Along with her achievements on the court, Williams-Flournoy has been a leader in producing all-around student-athletes and monitoring academic achievement. At Southwest Missouri

State Williams-Flournoy organized the academic monitoring of student-athletes and helped the team achieve a team GPA of over 3.0. She was in charge of academic enrichment programs also while at Georgia and with Georgetown.

During her two seasons at Southwest Missouri State Williams-Flournoy worked with head coach Katie Abrahamson-Henderson and was a part of two straight NCAA Tournaments and two consecutive Missouri Valley Conference Tournament Championships. Last season's Southwest Missouri State team finished the year with a 28-4 record and the regular season Missouri Valley Conference Championship.

At Georgia, Williams-Flournoy was recruiting coordinator for the program during a time when Georgia made six straight NCAA tournament appearances under head coach Andy Landers. The Bulldogs won Southeastern Conference titles in 1997 and 2000, won the SEC tournament in 2001 and produced seven current WNBA players during Williams-Flournoy's tenure.

Williams-Flournoy's four-year tenure at Georgetown saw the Hoyas achieve great success in her first season (1992-1993), as Georgetown earned a BIG EAST Championship and its first ever bid to the NCAA Championship, finishing the year with a 23-7 overall mark. As a Georgetown assistant she was responsible for all aspects of recruiting and scouting along with conditioning, game planning and academic monitoring and coached current assistant coach Niki Reid.

Introducing Georgetown's new women's basketball head coach Terri Williams-Flournoy

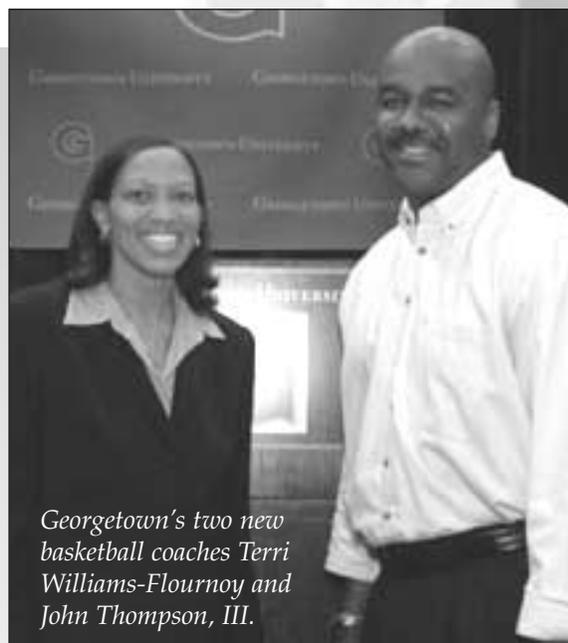

Friday, August 27, 2004

Interim Director of Athletics Adam Brick:

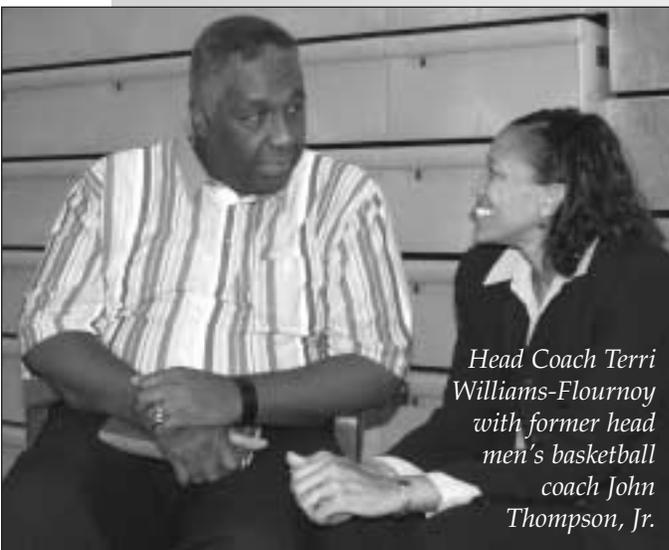

"GOOD MORNING, it is my pleasure to announce Georgetown University's next head women's basketball coach is Terri Williams-Flournoy. Terri began her coaching career here on the Hilltop in 1992 and we are delighted as she returns to take over the leadership of our basketball program. We not only welcome Terri back, but we also welcome her husband Eric and her two children, Maya and Eric, Jr., into the Hoya family. Terri brings with her an incredible amount of experience in intercollegiate basketball. She has a proven record in the overall education of student-athletes and is deeply committed to the academic success of her players. As a coach here for four years, Terri has a genuine understanding of the academic rigors of Georgetown University. We have known Terri for 12 years, and her integrity is beyond reproach. We are confident that she will be an outstanding role model for student-athletes, as well as other students on the Georgetown campus and in the local community. Terri is very familiar with success on the basketball court. As a four-year letter winner at Penn State University, she was a part of two conference championship teams. As an assistant coach Terri's teams have been to the last eight NCAA tournaments, she's been part of four regular season conference championships, three conference tournament championships, has made one trip to the NCAA "Sweet 16," two to the "Elite Eight," and one to the Final Four. The combined record of her years as an assistant coach is a remarkable, 251-116. It is with great enthusiasm that I introduce Georgetown University's new head women's basketball coach, Terri Williams-Flournoy."

Terri Williams-Flournoy:

"THANK YOU. I would first like to thank Georgetown University and the athletic department for this wonderful opportunity. Since I left Georgetown eight years ago, this has been nothing but a dream for me to come back and be the Head Women's Basketball Coach, and today is a dream come true. I have a lot of fond memories as a coach here and really enjoyed being a Hoya. The academic and basketball traditions as well as the Washington, D.C. area are all the reasons why I enjoyed being an assistant coach. I loved competing in the BIG EAST and I will step up to the challenge of being a head coach in the BIG EAST. I understand that I have the experience as far as the NCAA appearances that I've been through, and the recruitment I've done of talented players and I look forward to competing in the BIG EAST once again. Georgetown was my first family; they opened their arms and embraced me and for that reason I am extremely excited for my family to join the Hoya family. Thank you."

Niki Reid
Assistant Coach

Former Georgetown guard and assistant coach Niki Reid returns to the Hilltop for her second stint as an assistant coach with the women's basketball program. She served the past two years as an assistant at Fordham University. Reid's main focus will be with the Hoyas' guards and will also spend time off the court recruiting and fund raising.

Prior to the last two campaigns at Fordham, Reid finished six seasons with the Hoyas as an assistant coach, recruiting coordinator, and academic advisor. In her stint at Georgetown as defensive coordinator and guard coach, she helped the Hoyas to three WNIT appearances, while having four guards earn post-season honors in the BIG EAST. She also had eight players earn BIG EAST All-Academic honors.

As a player, Reid was tri-captain of Georgetown's 1992-93 team that advanced to the "Sweet 16" of the NCAA Tournament and finished the season with a 23-7 record. The Hoyas were 15-3 in the BIG EAST to gain a share of the regular season conference championship as well. Reid was a four-year starter at point guard and upon graduating in 1993 with a degree in Psychology, she left Georgetown as the school's leader in assists and three-point field goal percentage. She played in 111 games in her career and scored 744 points to go along with 161 steals. During her four seasons Reid was honored with the Coaches' Award as the team's Most Valuable Player in the 1991-92 season, was the recipient of the team's Best Defensive Player award for the 1990-91 campaign and was the winner of the Hustle Award in both 1989-90 and 1990-91.

In 2002, Reid began her second stint at Fordham. She first served as an assistant with the Rams during the 1995-96 season. In 2002-03, Reid's first year as the top assistant at Fordham, the Rams accomplished a long list of firsts. Among the firsts accomplished by the squad included their first back-to-back Atlantic 10 road wins and their first four-game winning streak in Atlantic 10 play. Fordham also put together two four-game winnings streaks on the year for the first time since 1994-95, swept an Atlantic 10 opponent for the first time since 1998-99, and picked up their first-ever win at Saint Joseph's, a perennial Atlantic 10 power. Also during her time at Fordham two players, Mobolaji Akiode and Monica Mack were named the Atlantic's 10 Most Improved Player in 2003 and 2004, respectively.

Reid resides in Alexandria, Virginia with her fiancé Timothy Geckeler.

Christy Winters Scott
Assistant Coach

Christy Winters Scott begins her first season with the Hoyas in 2004–05. She has a keen knowledge of the Washington, D.C. area, first as a player at the University of Maryland between 1986–90 and then as an assistant coach at both George Mason University in Fairfax, Virginia and then at the University of Maryland. Winters Scott is a Reston, Virginia native and will focus on Georgetown's post players along with various off court duties.

She has spent the last two years doing broadcast work as well as spending time with her two and a half year old son, Jerome, Jr., and her one-year old daughter, Brianna. For the last eight years she has co-produced and co-hosted "The Roundball Report" on CTV in Prince Georges County, Maryland.

Winters Scott spent five seasons at the University of Maryland between 1997–2002 as an assistant coach under former head coach Chris Weller. She was an active local recruiter for the Terps and organized Maryland's scouting program along with specifically tutoring the post players. She was a four-year letterwinner at Maryland as well between 1986 and 1990 and graduated with a degree in speech communication. In 1989, she helped Maryland win its eighth Atlantic Coast Conference championship and reach its third Final Four. As a senior, Winters Scott was a first team All-Atlantic Coast Conference and Kodak All American East Region selection as she led the Terps in scoring with 533 points (17.8 ppg). She is the second all-time leading scorer at Maryland with 1,679 points, fourth in rebounding with 723 and first in career games played with 123. Winters Scott is one of only two players to score more than 700 field goals (703) at Maryland. Winters Scott also ranks in the all-time top 10 at Maryland in games started (fourth with 100), blocked shots (fifth with 91) and field goal percentage (eighth with .537).

From 1991 to 1992 Winters Scott played professionally for Pamela Sud in Pistoia, Italy and in 1993 and 1994 she played and coached professionally for City Fribourg in Switzerland. In 1994 she was the league's leading scorer, averaging 37 points and 13 rebounds per game while playing for European Cup semi-finalist City Fribourg.

Before returning to her alma mater, Winters Scott spent a total of four seasons in the mid 90's as an assistant coach at George Mason working with post players and handling the recruiting efforts for the Patriots.

She and her husband Jerome along with Jerome, Jr. and Brianna Elizabeth reside in Reston, Virginia.

Alisha Mosley
Assistant Coach

Alisha Mosley, a Maryland native, joins the Georgetown basketball staff for her first season. A former stand-out player at Wake Forest University, Mosley will oversee the Hoyas' travel planning, assist with recruiting and scouting and work with the guards.

Prior to Georgetown Mosley spent three seasons at Loyola College in Baltimore, Maryland as an assistant coach. She was in charge of all travel coordination and made all lodging and meal arrangements for the Greyhounds. In addition to those duties Mosley assisted with scouting, recruiting, working with the guards and all other coaching duties.

A four-year women's basketball letterwinner at Wake Forest University, Mosley played for veteran head coach Charlene Curtis. She was named her team's "Most Valuable Player" at Wake Forest her senior season while also earning All-ACC honorable mention. As a freshman, Mosley was named to the ACC's All-Rookie Team. A point guard, Mosley finished her career third on the Deacons' all-time list in three pointers, eighth in free-throw percentage and 10th in assists.

Mosley then played for the Atlanta Justice of the National Women's Basketball League in 2000-01 under head coach Jeff Williams. She also worked for FoxSportsNet in Atlanta in 2000-01 through the ACC Futures Program.

A native of Baltimore, Mosley is a 1996 graduate of Mt. Hebron High School in Ellicott City, Maryland where she was a record-setting athlete. She was named the Howard County Player of the Year and to the USA Today all-state team in both 1995 and 1996. As a senior, Mosley was the state's scoring leader, averaging 28.4 points per game, also a school record. She was also named to the Baltimore Sun All-Metro Team twice.

Mosley earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in communications from Wake Forest in 2000. She is currently pursuing a master's degree in education and resides in Ellicott City, Maryland.

A. Leigh Maurelli

Head Strength and Conditioning Coach
SECOND SEASON

“Augie” Leigh Maurelli joined the Georgetown coaching staff in January of 2001 as strength and conditioning coach of the football program. In the fall of 2003, Maurelli assumed the title of Head Strength and Conditioning coach for all Hoya student-athletes.

Prior to his arrival on the Hilltop, Maurelli played four years of varsity football at Johns Hopkins University where he obtained a Bachelor of Science degree in Mechanical Engineering in 1997, and subsequently served as an assistant strength coach for three years under the tutelage of Bill Starr. In 1996, he set and still holds several university records, including a combined lift of 1,320 lbs. in the bench press, clean, and squat at 212 pounds. Augie was a 2000 Olympic Weightlifting hopeful and trial qualifier in the 94 kg class and is considering returning as a master this fall.

In 2002, Maurelli received a Master of Business Administration degree in Finance from Georgetown University's McDonough School of Business. In addition to professional positions at Johnson Controls, Goldman Sachs & Co. and MCG Capital, Maurelli is also a certified USOC Competitor and Coach, registered USWF lifter, and has been featured in Ironman magazine as well as contributed to the 6th edition of Bill Starr's The Strongest Shall Survive.

Maurelli now creates programs that monitor, motivate, and coach the development of all Georgetown athletes with regards to strength, speed, and conditioning.
