Tiger Basketball Success ... By The Numbers!

When John Calipari took over the Memphis basketball program, his goal was to return the Tigers back to national prominence. The first step toward that goal was to make Memphis a top program in Conference USA, and he has done that.

In the four years prior to Calipari's arrival, the Tigers had only 61 overall victories, 35 C-USA wins, no 20-win seasons and two postseason tournaments. The following numbers reveal the success story Calipari is penning at Memphis:

Preview/Review Notes

TIGERS CHANGING HOME DENS

The 2004-05 Tigers will move down the Memphis riverfront from its 13-year home in The Pyramid — located on the north side of downtown — to their new residence, the FedExForum, which is located behind Beale Street on the downtown's south side. Memphis will play all of its 2004-05 home contests in the new arena, and the 2005 Conference USA Tournament (Mar. 9-12, 2005) will be held there as well. The listed capacity for basketball is 18,400.

The FedExForum, which will also be the home for the NBA's Memphis Grizzlies, will house a state-of-the-art locker room for the Tigers. In addition to the players' locker room, the Memphis area will also have coaches' locker rooms, training room, players' lounge and a video room.

The Tigers played in The Pyramid from the 1991-92 season through last year and posted a record of 173-42 (.805 winning percentage). Memphis went undefeated at The Pyramid in 2003-04 with a 15-0 mark.

STREAKING TIGERS, PART I

Memphis may be moving to a new homecourt, but it will take a 21-game homecourt win streak — that began at The Pyramid in 2002-03 — to the FedExForum. The Tigers' current homecourt win streak is the fourth-longest in the nation entering 2004-05. Stephen F. Austin enters next season with the country's longest homecourt win streak at 30, followed by Austin Peay (29) and Wisconsin (28).

TIGERS ARE TOP RECRUITERS

For the second time in its four-plus seasons at Memphis, the John Calipari staff has put together the nation's top recruiting class. The 2004 class was rated as the nation's best by Hoop Scoop magazine. Rounding out the top five were Kentucky, Lamar, Oklahoma State and Florida. Other Conference USA schools ranked in the top 40 were Louisville (No. 9), Cincinnati (No. 17) and Marquette (No. 33).

Memphis' 2001 class was also ranked No. 1, while the Tigers' other two classes were rated in the top 10.

In other recruiting-related items, Tiger assistant Tony Barbee was named one of the nation's top 25 recruiters by Rivals.com, while Barbee and Derek Kellogg were rated among the nation's top 50 assistant coaches by Hoop Scoop.

FIVE IN A ROW IN '05?

That's what the Tigers are hoping for. In the 2004-05 season, Memphis will attempt to post double-digit league wins for the fifth-consecutive year. The Tigers are the only C-USA program to have double-digit victories the last four seasons. Memphis had 10 wins in 2000-01, 12 in 2001-02, 13 in 2002-03 and 12 in 2003-04. The 47 league victories since 2000-01 — head coach John Calipari's first season in Memphis — are the most by any Conference USA team over the last four campaigns.

STREAKING TIGERS, PART II

For the fourth-straight year under head coach John Calipari, the Tigers put together a lengthy winning streak. In 2003-04, Memphis won 11 straight in conference play. The streak began on Jan. 17 with a 91-69 win over Charlotte and continued through Feb. 24 with a 74-56 victory over Southern Miss. Included in that win streak were wins over Louisville, Marquette, UAB and Saint Louis.

The 11-game win streak was tied for the sixth longest in Tiger basketball history, and was also tied for the 21st longest in the nation in 2003-04.

Under Calipari, Memphis has compiled three of the top-10 longest wins streaks (single season) in Tiger history. In addition to last year's run, Calipari's 2002-03 squad put together a 12-game win streak, which is tied for fourth-longest in history. The 2001-02 Tigers won 10 straight,

Tiger Tidbits

★ Sean Banks has been invited to trials for Team USA's World Championship for Young Men in mid-July.

★ The Tigers have a 2-2 record when opening a new home arena since 1929. Memphis won its new home openers in Memorial Gym (1929-51) and Mid-South Coliseum (1964-91), and dropped its first games in the Field House (1951-64) and The Pyramid (1991-2004).

★ Anthony Rice needs 200 points to become the 39th 1,000-point scorer in Tiger history.

★ The 2004-05 season is the 20th anniversary of the Tigers' 1984-85 squad that advanced to the NCAA Final Four in Lexington, Ky.

★ Duane Erwin needs 16 blocked shots to move into the top 10 on the Memphis career blocked shots chart.

★ SLAM magazine loves the Tigers. Darius Washington Jr., and Waki Williams have already been featured in SLAM, and Sean Banks and Rodney Carney will be in SLAM later this summer.

which is tied for ninth. In Calipari's first season in 2000-01, the Tigers put together an eight-game win streak.

CALIPARI LOOKING FOR 100

Head coach John Calipari enters the 2004-05 season with 93 victories (93-39 record) at Memphis, needing only seven to reach the 100-win milestone as the Tiger mentor. Calipari has averaged 23 wins in his first four seasons, and is the only head coach in Memphis basketball history to record 20 or more victories in each of his first four years. Calipari is also the only head coach in Tiger hoops history to lead the program to four postseason appearances in each of his first four seasons.

TIGERS RANKED IN TOP 10 IN ATTENDANCE IN 2003-04

For the fourth-consecutive year, Memphis finished the season ranked among the nation's top 10 in attendance, according to figures released by the NCAA office. The Tigers, ranked 10th in the nation in paid attendance, had 15 home games in 2003-04 and attracted a total of 231,481 fans (15,432 per game) during their final season at The Pyramid. Kentucky led the nation in paid attendance, averaging 22,710 fans per game in 2003-04.

Since head coach John Calipari took over in 2000-01, the Tigers have been ranked among the nation's top 10 in attendance each year. The 2001 squad averaged 17,110 to rank sixth nationally, while the 2002 team averaged 16,225 to rank 10th. Last year (2003), Memphis ranked seventh with an average of 16,643 per contest.

RECORD-SETTING RICE

Senior Anthony Rice will begin his final collegiate campaign with his sights on the Memphis career three-pointers made record. The 6-foot-4 guard enters 2004-05 with 160 treys, which is No. 2 on the Tiger career chart. Rice needs only four to take over the top spot from Marcus Moody (1998-2001), who hit 163 treys. The Atlanta, Ga., native is also ranked among the Tiger career leaders in three-point attempts (No. 2; 435) and three-point percentage (No. 5; 36.8 percent). Junior Rodney Carney is also on the career three-pointer made list at No. 8 with 109 treys.

2004-05 Outlook A Conversation With Coach Calipari

What's the Memphis Tiger basketball outlook for 2004-05?

I'm worried that we finally have a team full of players. You now have other teams around the country going through what we were going through the past three years, with players either not coming or leaving early. We had four players do that, and if those four were playing for us, we'd be the consensus No. 1 team in the country right now. We'd be way beyond No. 1.

But, that's not what is happening in college basketball. Now, other programs that have lost kids after a year or have kids that skip to the NBA, they're having to deal with it like we did.

So, we now have a full team, but I call them a collection of players. Our job is to get them to place their own personal agendas on the shelf, bring them together and make them a great team. We've been able to formulate great teams here the last four years. I think every team we had became a good team by the end of the year.

The challenge is to mold this collection of players into a team, but we're doing it this year with three freshmen and a junior college transfer possibly getting good minutes. One or two newcomers may even start. You also have a sophomore and two juniors playing integral roles. You're looking at a young team, but one that is talented.

I would imagine that we would be ranked anywhere between No. 10 and No. 20 in the preseason polls. Early on, we may not be there, but as the season rolls on, this could be one of those teams that could make a run.

Give us a team breakdown for 2004-05.

We will have Darius, Anthony, Jeremy, Tank, Clyde and maybe even Rodney in the backcourt. At the three spot, Rodney, Waki, and Sean will see time, while at the four, we will have Sean and Waki. If we wanted to go bigger, we could play Richard or Arthur at the four. In the middle, we have Richard, Duane, Kareem and Arthur, and we also have Almamy and Simplice, who could also play the four.

We're deep up front with size, and yet we're still athletic. The only thing is that we're not going to know how much we will miss Antonio Burks until we get started. He was a tremendous leader and impact player. He made everyone around him better.

We have guys that are playing for themselves in their minds, and our coaching staff has to teach them to how to make others around them better while also improving their game. That's the challenge of coaching.

Tiger Position-By-Position Breakdown

Point	Off-Guard	Small Forward	Power Forward	Post
Beavers	Avery	Banks	Banks	Barclay
Hunt	Carney	Carney	Barclay	Cooper
Rice	Hunt	S. Williams	Dorsey	Dorsey
Wade	Rice	W. Williams	Erwin	Erwin
Washington	Washington		Njoya	Njoya
			Thiero	Thiero

			W. Williams

With the team's depth up front, will the 2004-05 Tigers have a post presence similar to when Chris Massie was here?

It was a unique situation with Chris Massie. Marcus Camby, who I coached at UMass, was a better shot blocker, better defender and better athlete, but he wasn't the scorer inside that Chris was.

None of our frontcourt newcomers are capable of Chris Massie numbers. But, Richard Dorsey is tremendous. He is close to 260 pounds and could play at 270. He is a (Detroit Pistons) Ben Wallace type of player. He jumps 40 inches, is active around the basket and wants to be good.

Almamy has been out because of injuries, but this is his opportunity. Simplice can back guys up. He is 6-9, but he needs to gain weight and become a player that just bulldozes people. Everybody knows what Arthur can do. He's helped us more and more each year. He has been limited because of his knees and other injuries. Hopefully, we'll see Duane step it up in his final year. I'd like to see him add some weight and show he can play through the pain and establish himself. We also have Kareem Cooper, who at 7-feet, is our tallest post player.

With Antonio Burks gone, who takes on the leadership role(s) for this team?

Our seniors, Sean and Rodney all could lead. When you lead, you are serving everyone else. You are not leading so they serve you. It's hard, especially if your agenda is you. If you have that agenda, you can never lead. No one will follow if they know the leader is leading for himself. So, we've got to work on that.

Players like Darius and Richard have to learn to follow before they can become leaders. They have to know what it takes to be a great teammate before they can lead. But, before it's all said and done, they could lead.

Right now, this team is influx. We have several new players coming in, some established guys, athletic players, a deeper frontcourt and a full team of 12-13 players and a couple of walk-ons. Those are things we just haven't had since we've been here.

Give us what you have on the 2004-05 schedule.

The conference schedule — which is great for our fans — has Cincinnati, Louisville, Marquette, DePaul, Southern Miss, TCU, East Carolina and Tulane at home. That's a great home league schedule. But, we have to go on the road at UAB, USF, Charlotte, Saint Louis, Louisville and Southern Miss, where we always struggle.

As for the non-conference schedule, I'll put it up against any in the country. We have Providence, which will be a top-15 team, and Mississippi, an SEC team that will have an RPI no lower than 60, at home. We have Purdue and either Texas or Temple on the road. We will also face Maryland, a top-five team, in Springfield, Mass., and either Oklahoma State or Pittsburgh — both could be top five — in the Jimmy V Classic. We also have East Tennessee, a top-25 team; Austin Peay, a postseason team the last two years; Middle Tennessee and Arkansas State, both teams that are close to receiving postseason bids; and Louisiana Tech on the schedule.

You are entering your fifth year in 2004-05. Is this program where you envisioned it being?

I feel good about where we are. I feel good about what we are doing academically and on the campus. When you look at a program and getting it in order, you first look at academics. All three of our rising seniors — Arthur Barclay, Duane Erwin and Anthony Rice — are on line to graduate.

Next are the facilities. We are re-working the Finch Center, our practice facility. We had some water damage a couple of months ago, but it turned out to be a good thing since now we will have the opportunity to remodel some areas. After the remodeling, our practice facility will be one of the top five in the country. We are also moving into a new arena, the FedExForum, this year. The locker room at the FedExForum will be as nice as any in the country on the collegiate level, and would probably be in the top five in the NBA. It is 3,500 square feet and will include a locker room, lounge, video room and offices. We've also been around seventh or eighth in the nation in average attendance the past four years.

We're on national television numerous times throughout the year. Five or six years ago, Memphis averaged only four national television appearances per season. The last three years, we averaged nearly 13 national television appearances per season, in addition to regional and local television games. This year, we may be on national television 15 or 16 times.

I also feel good about our recruiting. We've been in the top 10 in recruiting every year since we've been here. Kids want to come here and play for this staff. Kids know our facilities and want to play in Memphis.

All those things — graduating your kids, being on national television, ranked in the top 25, winning games, ranked in the top 10 in attendance and recruiting — show we are moving in the right direction. We've got the house in order right now. Going into year five, we're where we need to be.

FIFTH-YEAR COACH JOHN CALIPARI

Well, he's nearly done it again. The word "nearly" is used because even John Calipari knows there is still a ways to go with the University of Memphis Tiger basketball program, and he's not stopping until the program is back among the nation's elite. The most fervent detractors can look at the look at the Tiger program and see that it is in better shape now than when he took over in 2000-01.

Granted, the U of M has a storied basketball tradition with conference titles, postseason tournaments and two NCAA Final Four appearances (1973 and 1985), including the 1973 championship game. But, in this age of "what-have-you-done-for-me-lately," even the most loyal Memphis basketball supporters would admit their beloved Tigers had fallen on hard times in the mid-to-late 1990s. From 1993-94 through 1999-2000 (seven seasons), Memphis posted only two 20-win campaigns (1994-95 and 1995-96), and the Tigers had consecutive losing seasons in 1998-99 and 1999-2000.

Enter Calipari, who was put in charge of a second reclamation project in his collegiate coaching career. His first was at the University of Massachusetts (UMass) in the late 1980s and early 1990s. At UMass, he turned a program that was at the bottom of Division I into a national power.

Although the Memphis program had not slipped that far, the Tigers' fortunes had taken a nosedive from where it once was. But, in four short years, Calipari has not only revitalized the Memphis program itself, but also re-energized a city's love affair with Tiger basketball — a relationship that is the very fabric of the Memphis community.

For proof, take a look at the progression of the Tigers under Calipari:

Year 1: Back-to-back losing seasons before Calipari's arrival became distant memories as the Tigers won 21 games and advanced to the semifinals of the NIT in New York in the coach's first season.

Year 2: The Tigers posted a 27-9 record, marking the most wins by a Memphis team since the mid-1980s, and the squad took care of a little unfinished business from a year earlier, returning to the NIT and capturing the postseason tournament's championship.

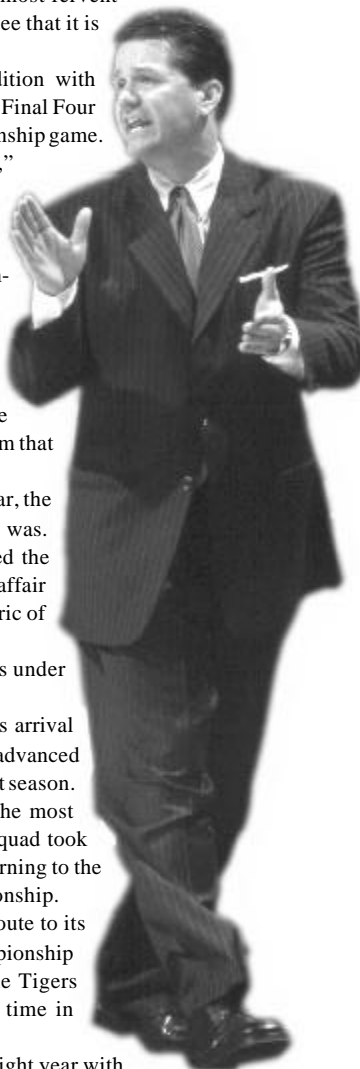

Year 3: Memphis had a 12-game winning streak en route to its second-straight Conference USA National Division championship and an at-large bid to the 2003 NCAA Tournament. The Tigers received an invitation to the "Big Dance" for the first time in seven years.

Year 4: The Tigers won 20-plus games for fourth-straight year with a 22-8 record. Memphis was 12-4 in Conference USA and claimed a part of the league's regular-season title for the first time since 1995-96. The Tigers earned a second-consecutive bid to the NCAA Tournament and won their first-round game over South Carolina, the program's first NCAA Tournament win since 1995. Memphis also finished the year ranked in the final Associated Press Top 25 poll at No. 24, marking the second-straight year it finished a season ranked (No. 19 in final 2003 AP poll). It was the first time the Tigers were ranked in the final AP poll in back-to-back years since 1985 and 1986.

Calipari's 2003-04 team had a spectacular campaign, considering it was playing uphill the entire season due to injuries. The injury bug hit right from the opening tip when the Tigers played the first game of the collegiate season against Wake Forest in the Coaches vs. Cancer Classic. Memphis played without the services of Jeremy Hunt (stress fracture surgery) and Ivan Lopez (hamstring) in that game, and lost a narrow 85-76 decision to the No. 20-ranked Demon Deacons.

After that setback, the Tigers began coming together, winning six of their next seven contests. But, a heavyweight match-up with nationally-ranked Missouri on Dec. 27, 2003, was the Tigers' next big test. Memphis passed with a 61-59 victory, but lost Rodney Carney for the next two weeks with a fracture above the eye. The Tigers were able to finish the non-league schedule with a 9-2 mark despite the injuries.

With Carney making his return to the court Jan. 10, Memphis opened its Conference USA schedule. The Tigers, though, dropped their league opener at Southern Miss, and followed that with a loss at DePaul. After the 0-2 C-USA start, Memphis began to gel. Similar to the previous season when the 2002-03 Tigers won 12 straight in the conference, the 2003-04 squad won 11 straight in league play, including victories over Charlotte, Louisville, Marquette and UAB. In the midst of the win streak, the Tigers suffered a blow that would affect them the remainder of the season. On Feb. 20, Hunt, who had started 11 of 12 league games, suffered an ACL injury and was out for the season. Memphis, though, fought down the stretch and earned a second-straight NCAA bid.

★ 2004-05 Season Prospectus ★

In 2002-03, the Tigers broke a seven-year NCAA Tournament absence with a first-round match-up against Arizona State. Despite the tourney setback, Memphis had a tremendous season with a 23-7 record and a 13-3 C-USA mark. The Tigers won the C-USA National Division for the second-straight year, and also put together a 12-game win streak during conference play.

A year earlier, the Tigers were parading down Beale Street, celebrating a national title. The Tigers defeated Temple 78-77 in the semifinals, and then cruised to a 72-62 victory over South Carolina to capture the University's first postseason title in any intercollegiate sport.

In addition to a 27-9 record in 2002, Memphis captured its first of two straight National Division titles with a 12-4 record. The Tigers rolled off a school-record 10-consecutive wins to begin Conference USA play. Capping off the season was a Victory Parade down Memphis' most famous street and a presentation of the NIT trophy to Memphis Mayor Willie Herenton's office.

Under Calipari, the U of M also has enjoyed four-straight record campaigns at the turnstiles. Tiger fans continued to show their tremendous support, as Memphis topped the 1 million mark under Calipari in 2003-04. In Calipari's four seasons, The Pyramid welcomed 1,129,351 fans for an average of 16,367 per game. In 2003-04, Memphis averaged 15,900 at its 15 home contests, the fifth-highest total in school history. In fact, four of the five top attendance figures have come during Calipari's tenure.

In 12 seasons, Calipari's collegiate record stands at 286-110 (.722). His record in March is even more impressive as he owns a 54-22 (.711) record when it counts the most.

By wins, Calipari has the fifth-best career start in NCAA history through eight, nine, 10 and 11 seasons, and is tied for sixth-best through 12 seasons. Through 12 collegiate seasons, only North Carolina coach Roy Williams, former North Carolina State legend Everett Case, Louisville Hall of Fame coach Denny Crum, Syracuse's Jim Boeheim and Arkansas' Nolan Richardson have won more games than Calipari. When he begins his 13th year in 2004-05, the Moon, Pa., native will already be in the No. 10 spot for most wins through 13 seasons.

In 12 collegiate coaching seasons, Calipari has led his teams to 11 postseason appearances. Calipari's teams have appeared in the NCAA Tournament seven times, advancing to the Final Four in 1996. Four other squads have appeared in the NIT, including 2002's NIT championship squad.

OFF THE COURT

However, Calipari's success on the basketball court has been a microcosm to what he has meant to the U of M and the Memphis community.

Early in his tenure at the U of M, Calipari began developing a relationship with Memphis-based FedEx. The overnight courier has employed Memphis student-athletes in its internship program during the past four summers. It is a program where the Tigers gain valuable experience in an area related to their field of study.

Calipari has also founded a program called NetWorks. The program brings together business leaders from throughout the community to network, find employment opportunities and place former U of M players following their playing careers.

Calipari has made several financial contributions to the University and has been honored by the Friends of the Ned McWherter Library on the U of M campus. In April of 2004, Calipari and his family made a $100,000 contribution to help endow athletic scholarships at the University. He also presented the U of M a check for $40,000 which resulted from a partnership between Calipari and Pace Cooper, president and CEO of Cooper Companies, the owner of the restaurant, Cal's Championship Steakhouse in the Hilton East Memphis.

At the conclusion of his first season at Memphis, Calipari joined several area business leaders to form the Y.E.S. Foundation, an organization designed to educate middle school students about the importance of academics and athletics. Y.E.S., an acronym for Youth Education Through Sports, held its first camp on the U of M campus in August of 2001. Over 25 schools are currently taking part in the program which is now in its fourth year.

Calipari has also been responsible for raising money and making donations for improvements at the U of M's tennis complex, air conditioning in the Elma Roane Fieldhouse and having courts resurfaced for use by Memphis students for outdoor basketball. Not only did Calipari secure a shoe and apparel contract for the basketball program, he also has helped with similar arrangements for several Olympic sports programs at the University.

Also in the community, Calipari has teamed up with Philadelphia 76ers star guard Allen Iverson and Reebok to renovate basketball courts in the community. Courts were dedicated in the Orange Mound community of Memphis, as well as a four-plex of courts adjacent to Halle Stadium in southeast Memphis. The Tigers were on hand in 2003 at dedication of courts at two housing projects, Foote Homes and Dixie Homes near downtown.

When he arrived, the University of Memphis had just opened a new practice facility. In the past four years, Calipari has directed improvements which makes the Larry O. Finch Recreation Facility one of the best of its kind and on a scale with some of the top practice facilities in the NBA. Calipari's latest vision for the Finch Center is to turn the entrance area into a memorabilia center that will chronicle Tiger basketball history. Also, with the Tigers' move to its new home, the FedExForum, Calipari and his staff will have input on the design of the team's locker room at the facility.

Away from the University, Calipari is a sought-after speaker. He has made countless appearances on programs such as ESPN's Outside the Lines, Jim Rome's radio and television shows as well as countless interviews on national radio programs.

2004-05 Memphis Class Looking to Leave Its Mark

The 2004-05 Tiger four-year senior class enters its final campaign this year with the opportunity to become one of the program's best.

The senior trio of Arthur Barclay, Duane Erwin and Anthony Rice bring a 72-24 overall record into 2004-05. The three players have also been members of Tiger teams that have advanced to three-consecutive postseasons (two NCAA, one NIT) and have won three-straight regular season titles -- the 2003 Conference USA regular season crown and the 2001 and 2002 C-USA National Division championships.

The 2003-04 senior class of Antonio Burks and Modibo Diarra posted a four-year record on 93-39. The duo were also part of those same Tiger teams that won three regular-season titles and advanced to three postseasons.

The 1984-85 seniors can also boast of three regular-season crowns, winning the Metro Conference in 1981-82, 1983-84 and 1984-85. Those seniors finished their four seasons with a 104-24 record, the fourth-most victories by a senior class in Memphis history.

The following lists the top-10 winningest four-year senior classes (number of victories) in Tiger history:

Years	No. of Wins	Record
1983-84 to 1986-87	111	111-25
