Barnes Wins First Lowe's Senior CLASS Award

Evan Barnes, a 2007 Naval Academy graduate, was honored as the Lowe's Senior CLASS Award recipient during the College Cup last fall. Barnes became the first recipient of the award, which had been presented in several other sports, but for the first time in men's soccer in 2007. The award, chosen by a nationwide vote of coaches, media and fans, is presented to the outstanding NCAA Division I senior student-athlete in men's soccer.

The award identifies personal qualities that define a complete student-athlete, with criteria including excellence in the classroom, character and community, as well as competition in sports.

Barnes, who was named third team Academic All-America and was a finalist for a prestigious Rhodes Scholarship, posted a 1.39 GAA and a .705 save percentage during his senior season.

In the classroom, Barnes was an Honors Systems Engineering major with a 3.88 overall GPA and he posted a 4.0 every semester he has been on the soccer team. He was chairman of the U.S. Naval Academy Leadership Conference where he was responsible for the planning and execution of the nation's premier undergraduate leadership conference, a four-day event involving over 250 participants from more than 26 colleges and universities.

In the community, Barnes was involved with a broad spectrum of fascinating projects that made an impact from campus to other countries. His global reach came on a project called Blood: Water Mission, an effort to provide clean water for people in Africa, to promote healthier communities and to protect individuals infected with AIDS from deadly water parasites and bacteria. Barnes also volunteered extensively at The Center of Ohio Science and Industry (COSI), teaching basic scientific principles to elementary and middle school students. He dedicated his time to his fellow students as the founder of a company peer tutor program. Through the tutor program, Barnes assigned mentors to individuals struggling academically and kept track of all meetings and academic progress.
