The Mids doubled that average over the last 21 games, however.

The Mids have made at least one three-pointer in 207 of 212 all-time Patriot League games (97.6%).

By the Minutes

Navy outscored its opponents during the opening four minutes of a game just 11 times on the year, but outscored their opponents over the opening four minutes of the second half in 20 games on the year and in 10 of its 14 league games.

Navy literally enjoyed a “big” run of 19-straight points in the first half of its Jan. 30 game against Winston-Salem State. Navy post players accounted for 16 of the 19 points during the run, which turned a 12-4 Navy deficit into a 23-12 advantage.

Navy-AF Game Cancelled

Navy's Dec. 22 game in Annapolis against Air Force was cancelled due to a blizzard to hit Colorado the week of the game.

It was the second game in Navy history to be cancelled due to weather, with the lone previous instance taking place during the 1998-99 season when Navy could not play its game at Loyola (Ill.).

Meyer Named First-Team All-League

Carly Meyer became the first Mid in four years and the seventh in school history to earn First-Team All-Patriot League honors last season.

In addition to becoming just the second Mid in school history to lead the Patriot League in scoring, Meyer also paced the league in defensive rebounds, ranked second in blocked shots and third in rebounding, free throw percentage and three-point field goals made.

One of just three Mids over the last 15 years to produce a pair of 30-point games in one season, her 33-point effort Feb. 13 is top scoring game in the league this season and set a new Navy record for the most points scored by a Mid in a league game.

She has scored 10 or more points in 19 games while surpassing 20 points in six games. Meyer has grabbed five or more rebounds in 20 of her 25 games last year, recorded three or more blocked shots in eight games and made three or more three-pointers in 11 games.

Hobbs Named First-Team All-Senior CLASS

Kate Hobbs was one of five players who garnered First-Team All-Senior CLASS honors as part of the Lowe's Senior CLASS Award program for women's basketball.

Now in its sixth year, the award recognizes seniors for excellence in the classroom, within the community and on the basketball court. CLASS in the award title is an acronym for Celebrating Loyalty and Achievement for Staying in School.

The idea for the award was conceived by sportscaster Dick Enberg, who remains associated with the award as its honorary chairman

After initial nominations for the award were submitted at the start of the basketball season, a list of 30 semifinalists was established in January. A national panel of coaches and media then narrowed the semifinalists down to 10 finalists in February, at which point another round of voting was conducted by coaches, media, the sponsors and the general public to determine the final awards.

Duke's Alison Bales was selected as the 2007 senior of the year, with teammate Lindsey Harding, Purdue's Katie Gearlds, Maryland's Shay Doron and Hobbs joining her in earning first-team accolades. Those garnering second-team honors were Amanda Brown of Penn State, Jessica Davenport of Ohio State, Dee Davis of Vanderbilt, Ivory Latta of North Carolina and Shay Murphy of USC.

"This is truly a great honor for Kate and the United States Naval Academy," said Navy head coach Tom Marryott. "At an institution such as ours where honor, courage and commitment are its cornerstones, Kate Hobbs exemplifies these virtues in everything she does. She has worked hard over the last four years to be the total scholar-athlete and she is very deserving of this tremendous honor."

On the court, Hobbs averaged 10.0 points and 6.8 rebounds a game during her senior season, while amassing over 900 points and 550 rebounds and appearing in a school-record 115 games over her career. Navy's team captain during the recently completed 2006-07 season, Hobbs also totaled 92 blocked shots during her four years to rank second to Yolanda Ray's school-leading 93 career rejections.

An economics major at Navy with a cumulative grade-point average of over 3.0, Hobbs was commissioned as an Ensign in the Navy this May and is beginning her naval career as a surface warfare officer aboard the USS Hopper. Having possessed a lifelong dream of becoming a doctor, a goal cultivated through her many years of volunteering at hospitals, she also plans to eventually attend medical school, as well.
