The November edition of NCAA On Campus features outstanding stories from the University of Central Oklahoma, West Liberty University and Concordia University, St. Paul.

In Edmond, Oklahoma, we will learn something about balance as we see Calvin Miller, defensive-line assistant football coach at Division II's Central Oklahoma, in action on the field and then we will follow him to his other job – that of a church pastor.

In St. Paul, Minnesota, we will profile the record setting woman's volleyball team at Concordia-St. Paul, who are trying to win their third consecutive NCAA Division II Women's Volleyball Championship title. We will also meet a baseball pitcher, who came in from the bullpen to provide a little place-kicking relief for the football team.

Finally, in Wheeling, West Virginia, we will introduce you to the amazing Shannon Baldauf, a West Liberty softball player, who donated one of her kidneys to a complete stranger.

This month's NCAA On Campus premieres Wednesday, November 4, at 9 PM Eastern on CBS College Sports Network and the show will re-air on the CBS College Sports throughout the month. Check local listings for additional re-air dates and times. Or you can always watch NCAA On Campus on the Web. Visit NCAA.org. or NCAA.com.
