

Father Joyce, 1917-2004

The Notre Dame family lost a legendary figure on May 2, as the University's former executive vice president Rev. Edmund P. "Ned" Joyce, C.S.C., died at Holy Cross House on campus. He was 87.

The death of Father Joyce - who had been a central figure in Notre Dame's athletic success for nearly four decades - came at a time when the athletic department already was in mourning for former athletic director Mike Wadsworth, who had passed away four days earlier at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. (see sidebar).

Father Joyce, whose namesake is Notre Dame's primary athletic facility, the Joyce Center, retired in 1987 after serving 35 years as chief financial officer during the presidency of Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C. The two priests took a long vacation immediately after their retirements, and Father Hesburgh wrote about their friendship in his 1992 book "Travels with Ted & Ned."

"Father Joyce was my right-hand man for the entire 35 years," Father Hesburgh wrote. "It would be impossible to recount all the great things he did as executive vice president. Without him, both the University and I would have been much diminished. When I was away, he was acting president, the man in charge. I traveled a lot, often weeks at a time, but I never worried for a moment about how the university was doing in my absence. I knew I had nothing to worry about. He was a man of impeccable moral character, shrewd judgment, rocklike fidelity and unfailing dependability."

Father Joyce (third from right) is shown laying the cornerstone of the Athletics and Convocation Center in 1968, the building that now bears his name.

Father Joyce was born in British Honduras (now Belize) on Jan. 26, 1917, and graduated from Spartanburg (S.C.) High School. He was the first student from South Carolina ever to attend Notre Dame and earned his bachelor's degree in accounting, magna cum laude, in 1937. He worked with the L.C. Dodge accounting firm in Spartanburg and became a certified public accountant in '39.

He entered Holy Cross College in Washington, D.C. - then the C.S.C.'s theological house of studies - in 1945 and was ordained to the priesthood in 1949 at Notre Dame's Sacred Heart Church. After ordination, Father Joyce was named ND's assistant vice president for business affairs and then acting vice president in 1949. His tenure was interrupted by a year of advanced study at Oxford University in England. He returned in '51 as vice president for business affairs and in '52 was elevated to executive vice president, also serving as chairman of the Faculty Board on Athletics and the University building committee.

Father Joyce was an influential voice in the NCAA, particularly dealing with educational integrity in college athletics. He was instrumental in forming the College Football Association and served as secretary-treasurer - and the National Football Foundation honoring Father Joyce with its Distinguished American Award.

President Eisenhower appointed Father Joyce to the Board of Visitors of the U.S. Naval Academy, and the U.S. Air Force awarded him an Exceptional Service Medal. He was inducted into the Indiana Academy in 1990 and three endowed chairs were established in his name at Notre Dame. After retirement, Father Joyce served as honorary chair of the Badin Guild, a planned giving organization for benefactors who provide estate gifts to the University. He also was a life trustee of the University.

His brother Lyle, who joined Father Hesburgh at Father Joyce's side when he died, survives Father Joyce. A Mass of Christian Burial was held on May 5 in the Basilica of the Sacred Heart and Father Hesburgh served as homilist, observing a pact made with his friend and colleague that the survivor would draw that duty.

Gifts in honor of Father Joyce may be made to the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, C.S.C., Fund for Notre Dame (1100 Grace Hall, Notre Dame, IN 46556).

Remembering Father Joyce

Roger Valdiserri, former sports information director

"(Father Joyce) continually reminded those under his purview that the program must always operate with complete integrity. No one could ever question his firm resolve to keep Notre Dame's intercollegiate athletic program above reproach. He was admired and respected in the world of college athletics and had a strong voice in the deliberations of the NCAA. He believed in the advantages of college sports, not only for the participants, but also for the institution as a whole."

Joe Doyle, longtime sports columnist for The South Bend Tribune

"Father Joyce always kept the interest of Notre Dame and its student-athletes foremost in his mind. ... And because of his insistence on moral and fiscal responsibility, Notre Dame is a beacon of light in the sometimes tawdry business of college athletics."

Ara Parseghian, head football coach, 1964-74

"Father Joyce understood fully the importance of academics and athletics at the university level. He wore many hats, as the executive vice president, one of which was his relationship with the NCAA. Notre Dame's status nationally was great enhanced by his work in maintaining athletic sanity."

Jim Gibbons, former assistant vice president, special events and protocol

"Father Joyce was a respected voice in intercollegiate athletics; one listened to in NCAA and College Football Association circles. He monitored the integrity of athletics at Notre Dame very carefully, paying particular attention to admission standards and graduation rates. He was proud of the fact that athletics at Notre Dame earned a surplus that went to support academic aspirations at the University and contributed to the overall fiscal prosperity enjoyed during his tenure as executive vice president. He served Notre Dame's president, Father Theodore Hesburgh, for 35 years, and the two made up one of the most successful administrative teams on any American campus. 'Ted has the books, and Ned has the tickets' was a standard way of describing the way in which they divided their tasks, but, of course, Father Joyce's influence extended well beyond athletics into the overall management of the fiscal fortunes of Notre Dame."

In Memoriam

Mike Wadsworth, director of athletics from 1995-2000, died April 28 at the age of 60 after a battle with cancer. He earlier had received a kidney transplant from his wife Bernie, in an extremely rare spouse-to-spouse match.

During Wadsworth's tenure, Notre Dame entered the BIG EAST Conference in '95-'96 and won four men's and three women's Commissioner's Trophies for overall excellence. He helped oversee renovation and expansion to Notre Dame Stadium (adding some 20,000 seats), played a principal role in negotiating Notre Dame's place in the Bowl Championship Series, and assisted in negotiating an extension of the contract with NBC to televise Notre Dame's home football games.

Wadsworth's tenure also coincided with the establishment of a Life Skills Program for student-athletes and he oversaw increased opportunities for women, with the addition of the now nationally ranked rowing and lacrosse programs along with 22 new scholarships for women's teams. The Notre Dame athletic program also was ranked third in the nation in a Sporting News evaluation of all-around standards.

A defensive tackle with the Irish football program and a 1966 graduate with a degree in political science, Wadsworth returned to his alma mater after a distinguished career in a wide range of fields. Prior to his appointment at Notre Dame, he represented his native Canada for five years as ambassador to Ireland ('89-'94).

Wadsworth - who played five seasons with the CFL's Toronto Argonauts ('66-'70), following the legacy of his father John "Bunny" Wadsworth - went on to earn his law degree from Osgoode Hall Law School in his hometown of Toronto. He was an arbitrator and mediator for Toronto-based Stitt, Feld, Handy & Houston from '71-'81, arguing several cases before the Canadian Supreme Court while pursuing his media career. He entered the business world in 1981 as vice president for administration of Tyco Laboratories and later completed Harvard's advanced management program ('85), after entering the executive ranks of Crown, Inc. As senior vice-president of U.S. operations for Crown Life Insurance ('87-'89), he helped restructure its U.S.-based business.

He is survived by his wife Bernie and three daughters. The family requests donations in Mike Wadsworth's name be sent to Gift of Life Transplant House, 705 2nd St., Rochester, MN 55902.
