The "Points of Emphasis section calls attention to certain areas of the game that the NCAA Ice Hockey Rules Committee believes must be improved, not through additional rules but by a stronger emphasis on existing rules. The rules committee requests that players, officials and coaches concentrate on the following areas:

Hitting From Behind – Much as the committee's focus on obstruction fouls changed player behavior a few years ago, dangerous hits from behind lessened considerably with last year's focus on these penalties. The committee considered intermediate penalties (e.g., minor and misconduct, major only, game and misconduct) but ultimately decided any lesser option would send the wrong message to officials, players and coaches. At the end of the season, players most certainly had more respect for their opponents in this area and had altered the behavior as a direct result of the committee's focus on this penalty. Reckless checking from behind will not be allowed and the impetus remains with the player delivering the hit.

Goal Crease – The goal crease is, first and foremost, the goalkeeper's area. Last year's alteration to allow attacking players in the goal crease when a goal is scored was not intended to allow interference with the goalkeeper. The goalkeeper must be allowed to play the position. Therefore, attacking players are not allowed to enter the goal crease and disrupt the goalkeeper from playing the position (e.g., screening, minor contact). Officials have the option of stopping play and conducting a neutral zone faceoff or calling an interference penalty.

Embellishment – The committee is concerned with what seems to be an increase in players using deceptive tactics to draw penalties. While the focus on obstruction and hitting from behind may have contributed, embellishment must be penalized. When players gain an advantage and draw a penalty, they must trust officials to make the call and not embellish the penalty.

Freezing the Puck – The committee also points to Rule 4-7-e, which refers to the privileges of the goalkeeper. There are too many unnecessary whistles in situations where the goalkeeper freezes the puck illegally. Several approved rulings were added to assist officials and players with this rule.
