2010 Lobo Men's Soccer Season Preview

By Richard Stevens - Senior Writer/GoLobos.com

There aren't really any defined goals for Jeremy Fishbein's Lobos anymore. Goals often are things that dangle just beyond your fingertips. It's a list that is part dream and part a realistic evaluation of potential.

For Fishbein's University of New Mexico Lobos, there really isn't much they can't touch or reach. They are a team as talented as any team in America. But can they make it happen? Can they turn reach into grasp and then do it again and again?

In soccer, a game so unpredictably blessed and cursed by luck, that can be a tough chore.

"I've always had a tough time coming up with goals or writing things on a list," said Fishbein, in his ninth season at UNM. "I have expectations that we will win conference and get an NCAA bye. This team is capable of that. You can say it's a goal, but it's also an expectation."

Fishbein's Lobos have established themselves as one of the top programs in America by often tightly pulling those expectations to their chest. Fish's Lobos have won 110 games in eight seasons at a 72 percent rate. This program, which lost by a goal in the 2005 NCAA National Championship game, has been ranked in the Top 30 for six consecutive seasons and once vaulted into the No. 1 spot.

There is a reason Fishbein was a National Coach of The Year in 2005 and when he rolls out his Lobos each fall, the expectations roll out, too. Sure, there is a bit of swagger in these Lobos, but any strut is backed by blue-collar work ethic and a passion for honest effort.

In 2009, the Lobos rolled out a 12-7-1 record and marched into the NCAA playoffs for the sixth time in eight seasons under Fishbein's leadership. He returns 17 lettermen, including All-Mountain Pacific Sports Federation players in Ryan Farquharson, Michael Green, Michael Reed and Lance Rozeboom.

"This is a new team with a new identity," said Fishbein. "What we have to take from last year is the ability to repeat the things we did well and improve in the areas in which we could have done better."

There is solid senior leadership behind three senior captains: Reed, Farquharson and David Murphy. Two obvious losses from 2009 are Justin Davis, who led the team in scoring, and Academic All-American defender Simon Ejdemyr. There are plenty of Lobos who have "been there, done that." This year they plan to do it better.

"There always is a little speculation at this point of the season," said Fishbein, who has won five MPSF Coach of The Year awards. "But this is a great returning group with great leadership, who understand the expectations of this program.

"It's a fact that we are going into the season with guys we trust and care about and who you know will give it their best day every day. There is a real commitment in this group to put it all together this fall. There are things you can control in soccer and I think this group will do a very good job in those areas."

There is no question this UNM team is respected for their talent and effort. The Lobos were picked in the preseason MPSF poll to finish first ahead of Sacramento State and Denver.

THE LOBO ATTACK

Fishbein's Lobos have an attacking mentality from front to back, but he says "we look at four position as attackers." That's usually the center forward, one of the center midfielders and two wings which roam the sidelines and also help control the midfield.

The bad news here is losing Davis, who led the team in both goals and assists in 2009. The good news is there are plenty of candidates to replace Davis as a scorer.

"We have a lot of attacking players," said Fishbein. "That's a real challenge to our coaching staff to get the right guys out there at the right time. We have at least eight guys who can play those positions."

The top returning scorer is Michael Green. The 5-foot-10, speedy junior had five goals and four assists in 2009. He'll be an immediate target in 2010, so he needs a little help from his Lobo friends. That list of supporting cast includes Devon Sandoval, Michael Kafari, Lawrence Robledo, Carson Baldinger (possible redshirt in 2010), Blake Smith and Josh Caffey. Fishbein said there also are several midfielders with the ability to score points.

"I think certain games will suit certain players better," said Fishbein. "We have the ability to mix things up a bit."

THE LOBO MIDDLE

A lot of soccer coaches say the midfield is the heart of a team and for good reason. The middies go forward. They go back. They attack. They defend. They complement the forwards and give reinforcement on defense. They are a link that needs to be strong. Fishbein likes that 2010 link.

"We have a lot of talent in the middle," he said.

James Urbany is one of the top returning midfielders along with Reed and Farquharson. Fishbein said Reed and Farquharson probably would see action as defenders, too.

"Our goal is to have our top players on the field and that probably means a few players will be moving around," he said. "There will be guys asked to play positions that maybe aren't their favorite positions."

On this talented team, if you have a position on the field, you should be more than happy. The midfield is a good spot for players with versatility. Sometimes a team needs an attacking midfielder.

Sometimes you need a midfielder with better defensive skills.

Lance Rozeboom, a junior, returns as a midfielder with an attacker's mentality. He got off 21 shots in 2009. Farquharson is listed as a midfielder/defender, but he took 12 shots in 2009 and Reed, a midfielder/defender, took 23 shots last year.

Some other talented Lobos battling for turf time in the middle are Matt Armstrong, Giovanni Rollie, Levi Rossi, Javier Gomez, Julio Velasquez, Patrick Pacheco, Giovanni Rollie and Julian Roberts.

THE LOBO DEFENDERS

Guess what? The backside of the Lobos is tough and talented, too. If there is a wildcard in this position, it's the shuffling factor that might come from the midfield. Of course, the Lobos that start in the back might change the look of the midfield.

"This is another area yet to be defined," said Fishbein. "What happens in one area of the field could dictate what happens in another area. If we have three great center midfielders and can only start two, then maybe the third one is good enough to play in the back."

David Murphy was one of the Lobo top defenders in 2009 and that shouldn't change this season. The senior captain started all 20 games last year and logged 1,819 minutes of playing time. Those minutes were good for the No. 3 spot on the team behind Farquharson's 1,840 minutes and Reed's 1,838 minutes. Fishbein said he expects Reed and Farquharson to see time in the midfield and in the back.

"A big challenge for us is player management and to make sure the guys understand this is a team-first system," said Fishbein. "Everybody has to buy into that concept. Our goal is to have our top players on the field and that probably means a few players will move around."

The big loss for UNM on defense is losing the 6-foot-5 Ejdemyr. There is potential for Fishbein to place a lot of experience in the back, if the shuffling of Lobos places Murphy, Reed, Farquharson and Urbany in the four defensive slots. That's a combined 6,438 minutes of playing time and 75 starts.

A few other Lobos likely to throw their talent into the defensive mix include Riley McGovern, Travis Campbell, Kyle Venter, and Levi Rossi.

"We won't have one fixed lineup, you never do," said Fishbein. "But we have the luxury of being able to mix it up quite a bit. You don't want to waste talent, but you don't want to mix things up too much."

"You usually look for three or four guys who are playing at a level that makes them interchangeable with the starters. Then you look to see which combinations are playing with a rhythm. You look for consistency."

THE LOBO KEEPER

On paper, the odds-on favorite to keep the keep is Justin Holmes. He won the starting slot at the end of the 2009 and got five starts on the season worth 505 minutes. He posted a 3-1-1 record allowing 0.71 goals per game.

Holmes is good, but there is talent galore in the goal with sophomore Victor Rodriguez and three freshmen eyeing time in front of the net.

"I feel good about the two returners and we have three talented freshmen, who are good enough to challenge them," said Fishbein. "Justin was starting at the end last year, but Victor Rodriguez is a great keeper. There will be a fight to see who starts and then there will be a fight for the backup position. It will be exciting to see how that works out."

Rodriguez played in one game last year backing up Holmes and Justin Fite, who had 13 starts. Rodriguez did not allow a goal with three saves in 68 minutes. The three freshmen looking to impress Fishbein are Taylor Haffing, Javier Lane and Patrick Poblete.

LOBOS FACE TOP COMPETITION

The University of New Mexico men's soccer team will be working hard this fall to make their eighth trip to the NCAA Tournament in 10 seasons. Lobo head coach Jeremy Fishbein recently announced the 2010 schedule which features six opponents that participated in the 2009 Tournament.

"We will have one of the most challenging non-conference schedules in the nation," said Fishbein. "With five NCAA teams in our first seven games, we are accomplishing our goals to play the top teams in the country and bring some great soccer action to the fans in Albuquerque."

Five of the first seven games of the 2010 season will be against NCAA participants. UNM will start the regular season with a six-game homestand at the UNM Soccer Complex on Sept. 1 against NCAA Second Round participant Saint Louis, followed on Sept. 4 by UC Santa Barbara, who advanced to the NCAA Third Round in 2009.

The 2010 TLC Plumbing, Heating & Cooling Lobo Invitational will feature games against Georgetown on Sept. 10 and Portland on Sept. 12. Portland knocked the Lobos out of the First Round of the 2009 NCAA Tournament and advanced as far as the Third Round. Denver will play Portland and Georgetown in the neutral games.

Buffalo and Harvard will be the guests for the Lobo Classic on Sept. 17 and 19. Harvard was the No. 10 overall seed in the 2009 NCAA Tournament and advanced as far as the Third Round. UC Santa Barbara will play Harvard and Buffalo in the neutral games.

The Lobos will travel to Dartmouth on Sept. 25 for their lone away regular season game. Dartmouth played in the First Round of the NCAA Tournament.

Mountain Pacific Sports Federation competition begins on Oct. 1 at home against UNLV. Denver and Air Force come to the UNM Soccer Complex on Oct. 8 and 10, while the Lobos return the favor the next week at Denver on Oct. 15 and Air Force on Oct. 17.

The battle for the MPSF regular season title and the No. 1 seed in the MPSF post-season tournament continues with the final two home games of the season against Seattle on Oct. 22 and Cal State Bakersfield on Oct. 24.

The Lobos end the regular season with a three-game road trip, starting Oct. 29 at 2009 MPSF champion Sacramento State. The Lobos and Hornets were the only MPSF representatives in the 2009 NCAA Tournament. UNM plays San Jose State on Oct. 31 and UNLV on Nov. 6.

The 2010 MPSF Tournament will be Nov. 11-14 at Sacramento State. The 2010 NCAA Tournament begins on Nov. 19 with First Round action. The 2010 NCAA College Cup will take place on Dec. 10 and 12 in Santa Barbara, Calif.

2009 POSTSEASON AWARDS

New Mexico had its fair share of postseason awards, both on the field and in the classroom. Seven Lobos were named to the all-MPSF list in 2009. Seniors Justin Davis and Simon Ejdemyr and sophomore Michael Green were first team selections, while junior Michael Reed and sophomore Lance Rozeboom were honored on the second team. Senior Stephen Brown and junior Ryan Farquharson were given honorable mention recognition.

Three Lobos earned All-Far West Region nods as well. Davis and Ejdemyr were both named to the first team, and New Mexico was the only team in the region to have two players who were repeat All-Far West Region selections. Davis picked up second team honors as a forward in 2008, while Ejdemyr earned third team honors as a defender last year. Green notched his first career All-Far West Region selection this year as a forward on the third team.

LOBOS DOMINATE IN CLASSROOM

The Lobos have continually garnered postseason academic awards, and the program has achieved a GPA above 3.2 as a team since the fall of 2003. The program earned its seventh straight National Soccer Coaches Association of America Team Academic

HEAD COACH JEREMY FISHBEIN

Fishbein is in his 17th year as a college head coach and his ninth at UNM. The Cincinnati, Ohio, native currently holds a 206-98-26 (.664) record that includes seven years at Fort Lewis College in Durango, Colo., two seasons at the University of the Incarnate Word in San Antonio, Texas, and eight years at UNM. His record at New Mexico stands at 109-38-16 (.718). He was introduced as the Lobo's fourth coach in July 2002 after the retirement of Klaus Weber. Fishbein played college soccer for Richmond and Cincinnati before graduating from UC-Santa Barbara in 1989.

Award. The award is given to teams who achieve a 3.0 grade point average for the academic year.

Senior central defender Simon Ejdemyr headlined the release of the 2009 ESPN The Magazine Academic All-America Men's Soccer Teams, as selected by the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA). He was the top vote-getter of all Division I athletes who were nominated, thus named the winner of the Academic All-America of the Year award in the University Division.

Ejdemyr was one of 12 Scholar-Athletes named to the ESPN The Magazine Academic All-America Men's Soccer University Division first team this year, and is one of three repeat selections. Ejdemyr was named to the first team for the second year in a row, and is a three-time member of the team.

New Mexico placed seven players on the Academic All-Mountain Pacific Sports Federation list in 2009. The list includes seniors Justin Davis, Simon Ejdemyr, and Euan Holden, juniors Ryan Farquharson, Michael Reed, and James Urbany, and sophomore Lance Rozeboom. This marks the third Academic All-MPSF award for Ejdemyr and Reed, the second for Davis and Urbany, and the first for Holden, Farquharson, and Rozeboom. All seven student-athletes maintained a 3.0 or better cumulative grade point average and played in 50 percent or more of UNM's games during the 2009 season.

LOBOS TOUGH AT HOME UNDER FISHBEIN

The Lobo men's soccer team has posted a 32-2-1 mark in Mountain Pacific Sports Federation action at the UNM Soccer Complex under head coach Jeremy Fishbein. The only two MPSF losses at home under Fishbein came against UNLV (2-0 on Oct. 18, 2003) and San Jose State (3-2, OT) on Oct. 16, 2005. New Mexico carries a 59-10-5 mark overall in eight years under Fishbein at the UNM Soccer Complex.

NEW MEXICO IS STRONG WITH A LEAD

The Lobos are tough to beat when scoring first or leading at the half. In head coach Jeremy Fishbein's tenure, New Mexico is 91-7-10 when finding the back of the net first and 59-3-5 when holding a halftime lead.

FISHBEIN REACHES 200 CAREER VICTORIES

Lobo head coach Jeremy Fishbein reached a career-wins milestone on Oct. 3, notching his 200th career victory with a home win over Cal Sate Northridge. Fishbein has posted a 206-98-26 overall record in 17 years, and he reached his 100th program victory at UNM with a Sept. 13 road win over No. 10 Notre Dame. Fishbein completed his eighth year at New Mexico in 2009, and currently holds a 110-38-16 record at UNM.

NEW MEXICO AGAINST THE TOP 25

New Mexico's win over No. 4 Cal marked the team's third win over Top-25 teams in 2009, and their second victory over Top-10 programs for the season. The Lobos' 12-7-1 mark includes a 3-0 win over No. 21 Saint Louis, a 2-1 OT win over No. 10 Notre Dame, and the 2-1 win over No. 4 Cal. The Lobos also notched all three wins on the road, defeating Saint Louis and Notre Dame on their home turf. The California win came at a neutral site in Stanford, Calif.

FARMING LOCAL TALENT

The New Mexico men's soccer roster continues to be loaded with native New Mexicans. Head coach Jeremy Fishbein and his staff have 11 student-athletes from the Land of Enchantment, including five true freshmen in 2010.
