

WILDCATS' HOME COURSES

The City of Chicago and the North Shore area are called home by some of the most prolific golfers currently on professional tours. Those golfers, who include Luke Donald, developed their skills on some of the finest facilities in North America right here in the Chicagoland area. Northwestern's golf team experiences the unique opportunity of taking advantage of these facilities:

Conway Farms: Opened in 1991, this Tom Fazio designed course was named by Golf Digest as one of the best new private courses in the nation and it boasts Luke Donald as a member. The 7,168-yard, par-71 layout is played on an open prairie and offers true links-style golf. With a 149 slope, its undulating bent greens and fairways require strategic course management and a variety of shots. Former Wildcat Scott Rowe holds the course record with a 9-under-par 62. Conway Farms served as the host course for the 1997 NCAA Men's Golf Championships, the 1998 USGA Junior Amateur, the 1999 and 2004 Windon Memorial Classics, the 2006 Big Ten Championships and the 2009 Western Amateur. It will host the 2012 USGA Mid-Amateur.

Skokie Country Club: Laden with great golf tradition, this 7,091-yard, par-72 layout is noted for its long, tight tree-lined fairways and extremely fast greens. One of the world's most renowned course architects, Donald Ross, created this fine test of golf with a 74.3 rating. Established in 1897, this course has served as host for such major tournaments as the U.S. Open and the Western Open. It hosted the 1998 USGA Senior Amateur Championship, the 2009 Windon Memorial, the 2010 Western Amateur and will host the 2012 Windon.

The Glen Club: Designed by renowned architect Tom Fazio, the Glen Club measures 7,149 yards and is a par 72. The course features rolling terrain with dramatic elevation changes, meandering lakes and streams, and stunning vistas. The Glen Club opened in 2001 and already has been host to the U.S. vs. Japan college matches and the Illinois Open. It has hosted the LaSalle Bank Open (now Bank of America Open) for four-straight years as well as the 2005 Big Ten/Pac-10 Challenge. The Glen Club also is home to Northwestern's exclusive Luke Donald Outdoor Practice Facility.

Glen View Club: This 6,450-yard, par-72 course challenges players with its fast, well-bunkered bent greens. Once home to the U.S. Open and U.S. Amateur, the club has a course rating of 70.9 and offers a specialty shot training area and putting green. It hosted the 2002 Windon Memorial and the 2011 Women's Windy City Collegiate.

The signature 18th hole at Conway Farms, site of Northwestern's 2006 Big Ten Championship.

Indian Hill Club: Conveniently located less than five miles from the NU campus in Kenilworth, Indian Hill is a shorter course (6,333 yards, par 71) that requires very accurate tee shots and strong short iron play. Its small greens bring out the best in the short game. Designed by Donald Ross, it has a rating of 70.7 and features a bunkered practice pitching green and large putting green.

Lake Shore Country Club: Perfectly manicured fairways and extremely fast greens highlight this course located along beautiful Lake Michigan in Glencoe, Ill. With a history dating to 1910, Lake Shore's final four holes are among the best finishing holes in Chicagoland. Lake Shore served as host for the 1997-98 women's Wildcat Invitationals and the 2007 Windon Memorial Classic for the men. During the 2010-11 season alone, it hosted the Lady Northern and Women's Big Ten Championship.

North Shore Country Club: North Shore, which counts Luke Donald among its membership, measures 7,031 yards and is a par 72 with a course rating of 74.4 and a slope of 134. North Shore hosted the 2011 Western Amateur, the 1983 U.S. Amateur Championship, the 1939 U.S. Amateur, the 1933 U.S. Open. North Shore also played host to the 1998, 2003, 2008 and 2010 Windon Memorial Classics.

Evanston Golf Club: The par-70 Donald Ross design opened in 1917 and is located in Skokie, Ill. Evanston was restored by Donald Ross' Ron Pritchard in 2006. Evanston has been a huge supporter of NU Golf and hosted the 2008 women's event, The Windy City Collegiate Classic, and the 2011 Windon Memorial Classic.

THE GLEN CLUB hosted the 2005 Big Ten/Pac-10 Challenge, a tournament Northwestern won. It also hosted the Nationwide Tour's Bank of America Open from 2002-08.
