“The thing that really inspired me to pursue a career in intercollegiate athletics is the importance that sports has played in my personal growth and development. All the lessons I learned as a student-athlete are transferable to life. The field of Athletics shapes character , instills values, and places you in a diverse environment with many unique personalities.”

“The Athletic Diversity Council Graduate-Assistantship has been a huge eye opening experience for me to get an opportunity to explore different aspects within an Athletics Department. The ability to interact and connect with so many positive people allowed me to venture out of my comfort zone and discover new strengths and talents. My aim is to empower and impact the lives of our youth through the athletic realm.”
