“‘Follow Through’ these words were often spoken by my father as I learned to shoot a basketball, pitch a softball, or even wanted to give up. Not two simple words, but rather a mantra of life. My greatest lessons were often not taught in a classroom, but rather on the field of competition. Lessons of perseverance, resilience, and cooperation developed through my athletic career. I desire to purpose a career in athletics as a means to empower others to reach their greatest potentials as a person through their athletic endeavors. For this reason, I wish to motivate student-athletes to reach their fullest potential not only as athletes but as citizens of our communities.”

“The Athletics Diversity Council Graduate Assistantship represents a unique opportunity for me to merge a love of collegiate athletics and academics into a challenging career path. Working in a variety of departments at the University of Oklahoma enables me to experience working with excellent individuals to gain a variety of skill sets necessary for intercollegiate athletic administration. Creating a strong foundation in these skills enables me to pursue a career in athletics through thoughtful planning and insight into the world of intercollegiate athletics.”
