50 YEARS OF PENN STATE SOFTBALL

A half century ago a woman hailing from the Hoosier State helped field Penn State's very first softball team. The squad played only four games during that 1965 season, going an even 2-2 with contests against in-state schools such as Elizabethtown, Lock Haven, West Chester and Wilson College.

As its first head coach, Pat McTarnsey would guide the Nittany Lions for a total of 15 seasons, from the program's infancy to its adolescence. Under her leadership, the school advanced to its first two post season appearances in 1975 and 1978 at the Pennsylvania and EIAIW (Eastern Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women) Tournaments.

As the sport of college softball grew, so did the Penn State program. Following McTarnsey's tenure as coach in 1980, Sue Rankin took over two years later at the start of the 1982 season. Under Rankin, the Lions would join the Atlantic 10 Conference and appear in their first ever NCAA Tournament, both feats accomplished during a 1983 season that saw PSU go 25-13 and win the A-10 Championship. In its first three seasons competing in the Atlantic 10, Penn State amassed an 86-40 (.683) record to go along with a pair of conference titles as well as NCAA Tournament appearances. Rankin also brought the program to new heights, delivering Penn State its first 30 win season in 1985. She duplicated the feat again in 1988, equaling at that point what was the program record for victories in a season with 34.

Rankin's team would go on to win another A-10 championship in 1988 before becoming a member of the Big Ten starting in 1992, where she guided the program for its first four seasons in its new conference. Starting in 1997, a new era began in Happy Valley as Robin Petrini became Penn State's sixth softball coach; it was an era that would last 17 seasons, longer than any one of her predecessors. During that time the Nittany Lions experienced an unprecedented amount of success, racking up 489 wins and earning eight trips to the NCAA Tournament, including seven in an eight year span.

The NCAA postseason run began at the turn of the century as PSU made its first appearance in the national bracket in 15 years, going 38-19, with 12-5 conference mark and a trip to the NCAA Regionals. From 1999 to 2008, Petrini's teams averaged a little more than 33 wins per season with the high water mark coming in 2006, when they won a school record 39 games. Under her leadership, Penn State amassed 30 or more victories in a season a total of nine times, including five straight from 1999-03 and competed in eight Big Ten Tournaments in nine seasons.

The 2011 season was a special one for Penn State and its program as it moved into a brand new $10.2 million dollar home, called Beard Field at Nittany Lion Softball Park. Construction began in the midst of the 2010 season and a year later, the 1,084 seat facility opened its doors to fans, alumni and community members to enjoy. The Nittany Lions would ultimately be the ones enjoying the creature comforts of their new home, going an impressive 21-12-1 (.632) in their first two seasons and serving as hosts of NCAA Regionals in 2011.

As one chapter in Penn State softball was just starting to be written, another one drew to a close. Following the 2013 season Petrini stepped down as head coach, opening the door for yet another era in program history to begin. That era took flight on July 22, 2013 when then, UTSA head coach Amanda Lehotak was named PSU's seventh head coach.

Lehotak, a native of Omaha, Neb., began finalizing a staff within weeks and by the beginning of 2014 was ready to see her new team take the field. During her first season in the Nittany Lion dugout, her squad posted series wins over Big Ten conference foes Indiana and Michigan State with a sweep of the Spartans in East Lansing. Another season highlight included an upset of No. 21 LSU on their home field during a tournament.

As Lehotak and her staff prepare for their second season in Happy Valley, they also look toward the future, announcing the signing of six standout high school players to begin their Penn State careers in 2016. The incoming freshman class was ranked 17th nationally by Full Count Softball and features the 28th and 36th highest rated recruits in the country. No doubt a bright future awaits Lehotak and her team as they embark on the next half century of Nittany Lion fastpitch softball in University Park, Pa.

PENN STATE'S NCAA HISTORY

The past 15 seasons have seen an unprecedented series of runs to the NCAA tournament in Penn State softball. The 2011 tournament represented the eighth bid in the past 14 years for the Nittany Lions and the 10th overall.

From 2000 until 2007, the Nittany Lions made seven appearances. In 2005 and 2006, Penn State was a pair of wins away from reaching the Super Regionals, but fell to Texas A&M and Arizona State, respectively.

Prior to 2000, the Lions reached the NCAA Tournament twice as a member of the Atlantic 10 Conference under former head coach Sue Rankin.

The 2011 tournament was the first time PSU has hosted a regional since 1983 when Louisiana Tech visited Happy Valley for a trip to the College World Series. The '83 edition of the competition was just the second ever NCAA Tournament following the AIAW Championships, which former head coach Robin Petrini won twice at Utah State (1980-81).

Ultimately, Penn State once again fell two wins short of a Super Regionals performance, but celebrated a successful season at home. Penn State advanced to the regional final after a grueling two-game elimination day featuring a 16-inning marathon victory over Fordham, 5-2.

The Lady Techsters swept the Lions in 1983, a similar fate Penn State would face against perennial power Adelphi in 1985, dropping a pair of 2-0 games in New York.

The Nittany Lions have posted back-to-back NCAA Tournament wins on three separate occasions—2001 vs. Cornell and Southern Miss; 2002 vs. Boston University and Princeton; 2006 vs. Long Island and at Hofstra.

Petrini guided Penn State to eight NCAA Tournament appearances garnering a 12-20 record in the process. In 2011, PSU was one of three Big Ten schools to make NCAA Regionals, joining perennial powerhouse Michigan and Indiana.
