At A Glance

St. Bonaventure will look to make it three straight on the road tonight against Siena. The Bonnies have won two consecutive games on the road for the first time since the 2000-01 season. The Saints own a 11-6 advantage in the all-time series and have captured three of the last four meetings between the two clubs. The home team has won eight of the last nine games in the series.

Last Time Out: Bonnies fall short of upset win over Michigan
St. Bonaventure overcame a large halftime deficit but wound up falling to hot-shooting Michigan, 68-60, on Friday afternoon at the Reilly Center. The Wolverines shot a staggering 78 percent (14-18) from the field in the second half and finished at a 62 percent (28-45) clip for the game. Trailing 32-19 at the half, St. Bonaventure set the tone with defense early in the second stanza. The Bonnies forced the Wolverines into six turnovers in their first seven possessions and held Michigan scoreless for the first four minutes of the half. Michigan regained control of the game by slowing the pace down and getting the ball inside, where it enjoyed a considerable size advantage. Sophomores Katie Dierdorf and Ta'Shia Walker combined to score 25 of Michigan's final 31 points, including all 10 points during a 10-3 run. That surge gave the Wolverines a 47-42 lead they wouldn't relinquish. (Box Score on pg. 18)

Climbing the Charts

Senior guard Stefanie Collins continues her climb up the St. Bonaventure career scoring list. With her 15 points against Michigan, Collins pushed her career point total to 1,248. She now trails '03 graduate and current Bonnies assistant coach Courtney Mattingly by eight points for seventh position.

SIENA GAME NOTES

Murray named Atlantic 10 Rookie of the Week

Freshman guard Katelyn Murray was named the Atlantic 10 Rookie of the Week for the period ending Dec. 17. Murray made the first start of her collegiate career against Canisius and didn't disappoint. The 5-foot-6 Murray scored a season-high 14 points, highlighted by shooting a perfect 3-3 from long range. In her season-high 36 minutes of action, she also dished out three assists and didn't commit a turnover.

Bombs Away

With plenty of deadly outside shooters, led by senior Stefanie Collins, St. Bonaventure has made the art of three-point shooting look easy. The brown and white currently lead the Atlantic 10 in long range field goals per game and are second in three-point percentage. The Bonnies .395 three-point percentage and 7.6 threes per game each rank in the top 20 in the nation. One of the most prolific shooters in the country, Collins ranks fourth in the nation in three-pointers per game (3.8) and is 13th in percentage (.493).

From Downtown

Senior Stefanie Collins continues to prove that she is one of the best shooters in the nation. She has knocked down 34 of her 69 (.493) shots from beyond the arc this season. Collins drained 77 long range shots last season, 75 three-pointers as a sophomore and 63 in her freshman campaign. Her 34 three-pointers this season brings her career total to 249, which stands second in school history to Suzie Dailer's 294. Collins tied the school record for three-pointers in a game (8) twice last season.

Picking Up Where She Left Off

After averaging 8.6 points over the final 11 games of last season, sophomore Priscilla Edwards has picked up right where she left off last season. The Harlem, N.Y. native ranks third on the team with 9.7 points per game and averages 4.2 rebounds and a team-high 3.4 assists per game. Edwards has posted double-digit points in five games this season, including a career-high 15 against Cleveland St. A play-maker with the ball in her hands, Edwards has dished out five or more assists in three straight games.

I.D., Please

Despite being the youngest two players on the Bonnies' roster, freshmen Erica Schiefen and Katelyn Murray have shown they're ready to play big minutes. So far this season, the 18 year-old duo has combined to average 13.3 points and 4.6 rebounds per game. Against Canisius, Murray drained three trifectas en route to a season-high 14 points, while Schiefen posted season-highs in scoring (10) and rebounding (7). Schiefen leads the team in field goal percentage (.522) and offensive rebounds (18). Over the past two games, Murray sports a team best 1.5/1 assist-turnover ratio.

Welcome Back

After missing the entire 2004-05 season with a shoulder injury, redshirt freshman Ashley Edwards is finally getting to showcase her abilities on the court. The Philadelphia, Pa. native turned in her best performance of the season at St. Francis (Pa.), tallying 12 points, seven rebounds and three steals. So far this season, Edwards is averaging 7.0 points per game and team best 6.0 boards. Her 2.2 steals and 4.6 defensive rebounds per game rank 3rd and 12th in the A-10, respectively.

Sensational Southpaws

Having two left-handers on the court at the same time is somewhat odd ... but three! The Bonnies lineup features three southpaws who all play over 20 minutes each game: Stefanie Collins, Priscilla Edwards and Erica Schiefen. The left-handed trio has combined to score 52 percent (31 points) of the team's points each game with Collins leading the way at 15.2 per contest.

DE-FENSE!

Despite being undersized, the Bonnies have used hustle and quickness on the defensive end to stymie their opponents offensive schemes. For the first time in 17 years (1987-88), St. Bonaventure held three straight opponents (Albany-49, St. Francis-45, Cleveland St.-49) to under 50 points and held Navy to 48 points on Monday. The Bonnies are limiting opponents to 59.2 points per game, a figure that ranks fourth in the A-10. A key attribute to their success on the defensive end has been their ability to create turnovers. The brown and white defense has been able to force opponents into an average of 19.6 turnovers a game, while collecting 9.7 steals per contest.

In his five years at the helm, head coach Jim Crowley has installed a coaching style of hard work and determination that has raised the level of expectations for women's basketball at St. Bonaventure.

Crowley's ambition, drive and vision has allowed him to assembled competitive teams while carrying on the values established by his predecessor, Marti Whitmore.

Crowley's 2001-02 club won six more games than his first team did, going 13-15 overall and 7-9 in the competitive Atlantic 10 Conference. Three of his 13 wins came over NCAA bound teams. Crowley demonstrated his flexibility as a coach that season, adopting a defense-first philosophy after using a run-and-gun style his first season.

A rash of injuries, including a season-ending knee injury to 2001-02 Atlantic 10 Conference Rookie of the Year Stefanie Collins and a back injury that cut short the year for second-leading scorer Lyndsey Maurer, led to a disappointing 6-22 mark in 2002-03.

In 2003-04, the return of Collins helped the Bonnies improve by three wins overall and finish fourth in the Atlantic 10's East division. Crowley guided St. Bonaventure to an impressive 69-65 win over Marquette, who later advanced to the NCAA tournament.

Last season, Crowley and the Bonnies welcomed eight new faces to the roster. On Jan. 16, Crowley guided the new-look Bonnies to their first win in 10 years at Saint Joseph's Alumni Memorial Fieldhouse. The brown and white finished last season with a 9-19 record.

This past off-season, Crowley guided the Western New York open division women's basketball team to a bronze medal at the Empire State Games. Sophomore Amanda Pierce joined Crowley on the Western New York team that returned just three players from the previous year.

Renowned for his work ethic, Crowley's players follow their coach's example on and off the court.

Under Crowley's guidance, players like Courtney Mattingly and Collins made dramatic improvements and blossomed into All-Conference players. Mattingly was a second team All-Atlantic 10 choice as a junior and twice was named to the Atlantic 10's Academic All-Conference team. Collins has followed suit, being named to the All-Conference and All-Academic teams in each of the past two seasons.

The academic success of Crowley's teams is also noteworthy. Each of Crowley's teams have posted better than a 3.0 team grade point average, and he has had three players named to the Academic All-Conference team.

Crowley has now been a part of St. Bonaventure women's basketball since 1996. Prior to being named head coach in March of 2000, he served as an assistant coach for four seasons.
