TULANE BASKETBALL PRESEASON NOTES

• The Green Wave returns seven total letterwinners for the 2008-09 campaign, including three starters, and will feature two players who sat out last season and two newcomers.

• TU's roster breakdown includes two seniors, three juniors, three sophomores, one redshirt freshman and two true freshmen.

• The 2008-09 campaign marks the 98th season for the Tulane basketball program.

• With one date remaining to finalize the 2008-09 schedule, Tulane already has dates against nine 2007-08 postseason teams. Among the nine postseason opponents are five NCAA Tournament teams, one NIT squad and three schools that participated in the inaugural CBI Classic.

• Tulane returns two of its top three scorers from last season in Kevin Sims and Robinson Louisme. Sims, who averaged 12.2 points and 3.8 assists per game, is the team's top returning scorer and assists leader, and also led the team in three-pointers (46), while Louisme, who averaged 9.8 points and 5.4 rebounds, is the Wave's top returning rebounding leader.

• The Wave has notched back-to-back seasons with 17 victories, which marks the school's first stretch of consecutive winning seasons in 11 years.

• During its 17 wins last season, the Green Wave put together three or more straight wins on four occasions, including a stretch with four and five victories.

• Tulane head coach Dave Dickerson enters his fourth season at the helm of the Green Wave basketball program and has an overall record of 46-45. Last season, Dickerson was named the NABC District 8 Coach of the Year.

• One constant for Tulane during Dickerson's tenure has been its success in opening round games of the Conference USA Tournament. Last season, the Green Wave moved to 3-0 under Dickerson when it dispatched Marshall in the first round of the 2008 Conference USA Men's Basketball Tournament.

• Tulane has a record of 27-13 (.675) at Fogelman Arena and a mark of 17-5 (.772) against non-conference teams in New Orleans under Dickerson.

• Tulane was once again one of the top shot blocking teams in the country last season with 171, which ranked No. 19 in the nation with 5.3 per game. Over the last two years, TU has been tough in the paint, rejecting a combined 359 of its opponents' field goal attempts, or 5.8 per outing.

• Robinson Louisme hit 60.2 percent of his field goal attempts (127-211) last season, which led all Conference USA players in field goal percentage, and was the fourth-best single season effort in school history. Louisme hit his first 13 field goal attempts of the year before suffering his first miss in the fourth game, and he shot 60 percent or better from the field in 19 of 32 games.

• Kevin Sims accomplished a feat not seen at Tulane in over 10 years. Sims put together back-to-back seasons with 100+ assists with 102 as a freshman and 120 during his sophomore campaign, which ranks 10th on Tulane's single season charts. Sims is the first player to record consecutive 100+ assists seasons since Jerald Honeycutt with 120 in 1995-96, and 131 in 1996-97.

• When Sims wasn't dishing the ball to his teammates he was taking it away from the opposition. Sims' 44 steals was not only the best by a Tulane player last season, but ranked eighth among C-USA players. Sims' six steals at Syracuse tied for the best single game effort in the league in 2007-08.

• The Green Wave bolstered its backcourt with the addition of a pair of freshmen signees from the state of Texas. Kendall Timmons is a 6'5" guard from Southwest High School in Fort Worth, while Trent Rogers is a 6'3" combination guard from Houston's Strake Jesuit High School. Timmons, the Texas 4A Player of the Year, averaged 18.2 points, 7.4 rebounds, 5.1 assists and 3.9 steals led his team to the state title game, while Rogers, one of the top players in the Houston area, averaged 12.6 points per outing and guided his team to a district championship.

• One year ago, the Green Wave outscored its opponents in the paint, 932 to 700, and won 15 of its 17 games when dominating the lane.

• Tulane played 32 games during the 2007-08 campaign, which marked the most in a single-season since the 1995-96 campaign.

• Kevin Sims did not have to worry about playing time last season. He not only led the team in minutes played with 34.6 per game, but his 1,108 total ranks as the fifth most on the school's single season list for minutes played.

• Despite nagging injuries last season, Daniel Puckett started 18 of 31 games and averaged 5.1 points and 1.5 assists per game.

• Eric Vianney, Johnny Mayhane and Kris Richard combined for 48 three-point field goals last season.

• Asim McQueen showed a flash of his potential last year on the road at Rice when he notched a career-high 15 points. In 16 minutes of action, McQueen hit his first career three-pointer in the first half and then torched the nets for 12 points and two highlight reel dunks in the second half. He finished a perfect 7-of-7 from the field.

Dave Dickerson

Head Coach
Maryland, 1990
Fourth Year

The mastermind behind the resurgence of the Tulane men's basketball program, Dave Dickerson begins his fourth season as the head coach on the Uptown campus in 2008-09. Dickerson has an overall record of 46-45 and a Conference USA mark of 21-25.

Dickerson has taken the Green Wave basketball from a program that enjoyed just one winning season during the five years prior to his arrival and overhauled the squad into a conference contender by his second season. Last season, Dickerson guided the Wave to back-to-back winning seasons for the first time since the 1995-96 and 1996-97 campaigns, or a span of 11 years, and Tulane once again found success in the Conference USA Tournament.

Season highlights included a 10-4 non-conference record with a 3-0 mark against Southeastern Conference teams, including wins over SEC Tournament Champion Georgia, Auburn and LSU, 10 victories inside the city of New Orleans, including an impressive victory over in-state rival LSU, and TU improved to 3-0 under Dickerson in Conference USA Tournament opening round games with its victory over Marshall in the first round of the 2008 C-USA Tourney.

Tulane's success did not go unnoticed in the coaching circles as Dickerson was tabbed as the National Association of Basketball Coaches All-District 8 Coach of the Year, and was the lone coach from Conference USA to receive the national award.

Off the court, the Green Wave was recognized in the NCAA's annual Academic Performance Rates as one of the NCAA's top 10 percent basketball squads, and was just one of 33 school's from around the nation that were singled out for its elite success.

However, Tulane's success under Dickerson has not come easy or been the norm of most rebuilding jobs. Dickerson has been forced to take the road less traveled for most coaches, but still managed to mold the Green Wave into a winning program. He had to withstand the ordeal brought on by Hurricane Katrina during his first season and the distractions of the rebuilding process both in New Orleans and on the Tulane campus during his second campaign.

"Has any coach in America had it tougher than Dave Dickerson? He not only had to rebuild a struggling Tulane program, but he had to do it in the wake of Hurricane Katrina. It is hard not to root for Tulane. And it's easy to recognize that Dickerson is one of the most courageous coaches in the country for the burden he has shouldered," said ESPN's Jay Bilas.

After Tulane's 17-win campaign and fourth-place finish in 2006-07, one ESPN analyst stated that "Given everything he's had to deal with, Dave Dickerson should be coach of the year."

Along with the 46 victories and three straight opening round victories in the Conference USA Tournament during his first three years, Dickerson has helped three players earn All C-USA recognition, including Quincy Davis (third team), David Gomez (second team/third team), Kevin Sims (all-freshman team) and Chris Moore, who was a two-time C-USA Player of the Week honoree.

Dickerson has shaped the Green Wave into a stingy team on its home court and city. Tulane has a record of 27-13 (.680) at Fogelman Arena and a mark of 17-5 (.772) against non-conference teams in New Orleans.

During his second season, Tulane was once again picked to finish close to the bottom of the Conference USA race, but Dickerson and the Green Wave proved the league wrong with a 17-13 overall record and TU recorded its best conference finish in nine years with a 9-7 league mark, which was good enough for fourth place. Dickerson led the Green Wave to its most wins in seven seasons and the program's first winning season in four years.

Tulane was tough to beat at Fogelman Arena with an 11-4 mark and concluded the year riding a four-game win streak on its home floor.

Dickerson's 29 wins in his first two seasons put him in third place for the most wins by a Tulane coach in the first two seasons.

During his first season at the helm of the Green Wave basketball program, Dickerson was faced with perhaps a challenge no other first-year basketball coach in NCAA history has ever had to overcome. On August 29, 2005, Hurricane Katrina made landfall south of New Orleans and the effects of the storm devastated the city as levees broke and flooded a majority of the city.

The Green Wave settled in College Station, Texas, home of Texas A&M University, and Dickerson, along with his players and staff, began their first campaign together.

Despite the challenges, Dickerson led Tulane to a 12-17 overall record and a 6-8 Conference USA mark, which tied the Wave for sixth place. The Green Wave continued to jell late in the season, winning seven of its final 12 games, including a 64-58 first round victory over Marshall in the Conference USA Tournament. TU dropped a hard-fought decision to eventual champion and NCAA "Elite Eight" team, Memphis, on its home floor in the C-USA Tourney quarterfinals.

Dickerson came to Tulane from his alma mater of Maryland, where he spent nine years as an assistant under Gary Williams. In 2004-05, he was the program's associate head coach. He helped the Terrapins to nine straight postseason appearances, five Sweet Sixteens, two Final Fours and one National Championship in 2002.

Accolades for Dickerson have included his recognition as an AFLAC Assistant Coach of the Year in 2003, the ACC's No. 1 Assistant Coach as named by Basketball News (2003-04), Athlon Sports' No. 4 Assistant Coach in the nation (2003-04), and an "Assistant Coach on the Rise" as tabbed by ESPN's Andy Katz.

After six straight winning seasons as an assistant coach at three schools, Dickerson was tabbed by Gary Williams to return to his alma mater as an assistant. Williams had built a foundation for success with the Terrapins in his first seven years as the head coach, but with Dickerson at his side, Maryland enjoyed an unprecedented run. In their nine years together, the Terrapins made nine postseason appearances, posted eight 20-win seasons, advanced to two Final Fours and won the first National Championship in program history in 2002.

"Winning the national championship at Maryland was a dream-come-true," Dickerson said. "It validated the reason I went to Maryland as a student-athlete. I thought we were the type of school that could get into a position to win a national championship. One of my goals after winning the championship as an assistant coach was to try and be a head coach and chase that dream again."

With his impressive run as an assistant coach, his strong family background and his reputation as one of the hardest-working coaches in the business, Dickerson was an easy choice for Tulane Athletic Director Rick Dickson as the man to take charge of the Green Wave basketball program.

Soon, Dickerson recognized that Tulane matched his personality and requirements as well.

"The first thing that attracted me to Tulane was the opportunity to be a head coach at one of the best schools in the country with a national reputation for its academics and the potential to be a nationally-recognized basketball program," Dickerson said. "As I did more research, I could see that it was also an opportunity to come into a program and make a difference by winning basketball games, which has always been the type of situation I saw myself going into."

Upon settling into New Orleans and Tulane, Dickerson quickly embraced his new family - the Tulane basketball players. As a collegiate player, he had experienced a coaching change and knew the stress and confusion it could cause. He set up individual meetings with all of the returning players and his first road trips were to the homes of the two players who had signed letters of intent to play for the Green Wave.

From there, Dickerson's goal was to change the atmosphere and attitude surrounding the program.

Dickerson, facing what was likely to be among the most trying first years for a head coach in history, responded with strength and determination, drawing on his own experiences as a player at Maryland to guide the Green Wave players through the challenges. Following Dickerson's freshman year at Maryland, that program experienced a tragedy when All-American Len Bias suffered a drug-related death shortly after being selected No. 2 in the 1986 NBA Draft. Dickerson, who had served as Bias' backup, saw the Maryland program thrown into disarray.

"I learned so much from everything that happened to our program when I was a player at Maryland," Dickerson said. "You can approach adversity in two ways, you can shrink from it and hide, or you can meet it head-on and learn from it. As much as I wish that none of that happened, I learned from it, I grew up much quicker than I would have otherwise. Seeing how things were handled at the time, both positively and negatively, made me realize that I wanted to be a basketball coach."

Dickerson's long-term goals for his men's basketball program are consistent with the same values Tulane holds as a university.

"My long-range goal for the program is for us to be as good as the school," Dickerson said. "If we are a top 30 school in the country, then my goal is for us to be a top 30 basketball program. If we can be at that level, then we will be competing for postseason play every year. My top priority is to make sure that our players have a great experience, both on and off the court, in and out of the classroom, and that they are better people from being at Tulane. I want the Tulane experience to be one of the best experiences of their lives."

As his teams come together as a family each season, Dickerson is clearly the mentor and role model for his "kids." Winning basketball games is a goal for every coach, but Dickerson also focuses on developing his players into responsible young men with the tools necessary to succeed in life, whether on or off the basketball court.

"The guys that come through a college basketball program are not all going to be professional basketball players," Dickerson said. "Our guys can look at me and see that going to college and getting a degree can do something for you. You don't have to be a pro basketball player; you don't have to be a great basketball player in college to be successful. I hope I can rub off on them. I am a true student-athlete. I used basketball to get a scholarship and I used basketball to be successful in life. That is what 90 percent of our basketball players at Tulane have to do, use basketball to earn a Tulane education which will allow them to be successful in life."

Dickerson wants each and every Tulane basketball player to know that they will always have the support of their Green Wave family to help them achieve success, just as Dickerson has relied upon his original family of his parents and sisters, his number one family of his wife and son, and his basketball families at Maryland and now Tulane.

Growing up in a small town in South Carolina, Dickerson did not have to look far for positive role models. When his mother passed when he was eight years old, his father and his older sisters provided the drive for his success.

"I have six older sisters and they are all very, very successful in different ways, so I had instant role models because they were the people I wanted to be like and they demanded that I be successful," Dickerson said. "There was pressure from them just to go to college, not to play basketball, but just to go to college."

"My father was also a role model for me. He worked every day for 35 years, never complained and the most he ever made was $15,000. I never knew I was poor, because we had stability and discipline within the family, and everyone in my family knew they had to do something with their lives."

With that support, Dickerson grew into a standout high school basketball player before making his first big move - to the University of Maryland, where he was a standout basketball player. In 1988-89, he was selected a team captain for the Terrapins, a tribute to his leadership skills. From there, coaching was the obvious next step.

"I knew in the back of my mind that playing basketball was not going to be a career for me, so I started looking at different things," Dickerson said. "I was the type of student-athlete that always wanted to give back; I was always a leader. Even though I had a tough career at Maryland with a lot adversity, my coaches were always the people that kept me going in the right direction. I wanted to be like them. So coaching was my destiny."

A native of Olar, S.C., Dickerson is married to the former Laurette Newsom, a 1991 graduate of Maryland. The couple has one child, Dave III (7).

Dick Bender

Assistant Coach
Western Maryland, 1986
Second Year

Dick Bender begins his second season as an assistant coach for the Green Wave in 2008-09, and will once again assist in every aspect of the men's program at Tulane.

Bender, 45, joined the Green Wave staff in the summer of 2007, and helped Tulane post 17 wins during the 2007-08 campaign and advance to the quarterfinals of the 2008 Conference USA Tournament.

Bender is no stranger to TU head coach Dave Dickerson, as both coaches served on the men's basketball staff at Radford University for four seasons (1992-96).

Bender came to Tulane from Indiana State University where he completed his 10th overall season on the Sycamores' staff in 2006-07, and his fifth campaign as an associated head coach after being elevated to the position following the 2001 campaign.

Bender, who also served as former ISU head coach Royce Waltman's top assistant at DePauw University in Greencastle, Ind., was responsible for the Sycamores' daily basketball operations and he assisted in individual player development, scouting, game preparation, and academic support.

Bender was hired at Indiana State from Radford, where he spent six seasons as an assistant for Highlander head coach Ron Bradley. In those six seasons, Radford compiled not only the best non-conference record of any member of the Big South Conference, but also the top conference mark. Bender witnessed one of the biggest wins in school history, when Radford traveled to Baton Rouge, La., and upset LSU, 73-72, during the 1993-94 season. The Highlanders also posted excellent marks in the classroom, as the graduation rates of Highlander student-athletes ranked ninth in the nation at one point of Bender's tenure.

Prior to Radford, Bender spent those aforementioned seasons with Waltman at DePauw from 1987-92. Bender helped lead the Tigers to a four-year record of 80-30. They were twice ranked number-one in the country in Division III during that span and were national runners-up in the NCAA tournament in 1989-90.

A native of Grantsville, Md., Bender graduated from Western Maryland in 1986 and received his master's degree from DePauw in 1989. Bender played two seasons of basketball at Western Maryland and was the team MVP as a senior. His 91 percent free throw shooting ranked third nationally among Division III players in 1985-86.

Before arriving at DePauw, Bender spent one year teaching in Maryland while also serving as an assistant basketball coach at Charles County Community College. During his tenure, the team posted a 26-7 record and won the Maryland Junior College National Division Championship.

Bender and his wife, Beth, have two sons: Dalton (17) and Dillon (15).

Chris Hawkins

Assistant Coach
Radford, 1993
Second Year

Chris Hawkins enters his second season as an assistant coach for the Green Wave men's basketball program in 2008-09.

During his first season on the staff, Hawkins helped Tulane to 17 victories, including three victories over Southeastern Conference teams, and to a first round win in the Conference USA Tournament.

Hawkins, 37, came to Tulane after spending seven seasons as an assistant coach at the University of Buffalo, where he was instrumental in the Bulls' recruiting efforts and also contributed to the scouting of opponents and coaching the perimeter players.

During his tenure at Buffalo, Hawkins helped the Bulls to 71 victories over the last four seasons, including a 23-10 record and postseason NIT appearance in 2004-05, and a 19-win season in 2005-06.

Hawkins came to UB from Radford University, where he served as an assistant coach for three seasons. While with the Highlanders, Hawkins helped lead the team to a 58-28 record over three seasons, including the 1997-98 Big South Championship and a trip to the NCAA Tournament. In 1999-2000, Radford was the Big South Conference regular season champions. Hawkins played for current TU assistant coach Dick Bender, who was an assistant coach at Radford.

As a player for the Highlanders from 1988-92, Hawkins was named the Most Valuable Player of the 1991-92 team that won the Big South regular season championship. During his last two seasons playing at Radford, the team finished with a 42-16 record. He still ranks fourth in the school's records for career assists.

Prior to his coaching stint at Radford, Hawkins coached for three seasons at Bladensburg High School in Bladensburg, Md. His first year was as an assistant coach, followed by two seasons as the head coach. During his tenure as head coach, he guided the team to a 27-15 record, including a 17-5 record during the 1996-97 season.

Hawkins received a bachelor's degree from Radford University in 1993, and a master's degree in education from National-Louis University.

Hawkins and with his wife, Jacquie, have one daughter: Chandler (11).

Andrew Novick

Assistant Coach
Chicago, 1999
Fourth Year

The longest tenured coach on Dave Dickerson's staff, Andrew Novick begins his fourth season as an assistant coach for Tulane basketball team.

In just three seasons, Novick, 31, has played an instrumental role in helping the Green Wave to 46 wins, three straight Conference USA Tournament opening round victories and three players have garnered all-conference honors, including David Gomez, who earned back-to-back honors the last two seasons.

In 2007-08, Novick helped the Wave to back-to-back winning seasons for the first time in over 10 years with a 17 victories, and TU posted a win over Marshall in the first round of the Conference USA Tournament before falling in the quarterfinal round.

Novick's second season saw the Wave post a 17-13 overall record, a 9-7 Conference USA mark, which was good enough for a fourth place finish, and TU advanced to the C-USA Tournament semifinals for the first time since 1999-2000. Tulane's league win total was the most in 10 years.

During his first season on the Green Wave staff, Novick helped Tulane to a 12-17 overall record, a sixth-place finish in Conference USA action and to the quarterfinals of the 2006 Conference USA Tournament with a first round victory over Marshall.

Novick was the final hire by head coach Dave Dickerson for the Tulane men's basketball coaching staff two years ago. Novick was reunited with Dickerson after serving as a graduate assistant with Dickerson at Maryland.

He was a graduate assistant on Gary Williams' staff at Maryland for the last two years. He joined the Terrapins for their 2003-04 ACC Championship campaign, making his return to basketball after three years in corporate America and a stint as the assistant varsity basketball coach at Cheverus High School in Portland, Maine.

A native of Portland, Maine, Novick became Maryland basketball's inaugural graduate assistant after being introduced to the program during the 2003 Gary Williams Basketball Camp. In addition to assisting in the day-to-day activities of the basketball office, Novick's responsibilities included supporting recruiting, assisting in the management of Coach Williams' daily schedule, supervising the student-managers and assisting in operations.

After earning a varsity letter and captaining Deering High's basketball team, Novick earned a bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Chicago in 1999. During his college years he managed and coached in the Yes! To Youth program in Portland, Maine, a basketball clinic that serves approximately 400 middle and high schoolers annually.

Novick is married to the former Sabrina Saraf and the couple resides in New Orleans.
