Intercollegiate athletics at the University of Utah dates back to the 1800s, but its teams have certainly kept pace with the times.

National success came early for Utah, with basketball winning its first of three national championships in 1916 (the AAU Championship). Men's hoops would win the 1944 NCAA Tournament and 1947 National Invitational Tournament as well. Football also had some early success, winning the 1938 Sun Bowl.

Utah's tentative steps up the national athletics ladder escalated to leaps and bounds when the '60s rolled around. In 1961 and '66, the men's basketball team advanced to the NCAA Final Four. In 1964, the football team went 9-2 and crushed West Virginia 32-6 in the Liberty Bowl. Men's swimming also thrived, laying the groundwork for a program that would win 22 conference championships.

In the mid-1970s, women's athletics entered the Ute fold and quickly made up for time lost on the sidelines. Hall of Fame basketball coach Fern Gardner pioneered a program that has averaged 20 wins per year since its inception. The Ute women skiers struck gold at the 1977 AIAW Championships and sandwiched that title with a trio of silvers from 1976-79. And what would soon become the premier women's gymnastics team in the nation began competing in 1975-76. Coach Greg Marsden led that first team to a 10th-place national finish, a feat he has been surpassed every year since then. In the spring of 1979, the Ute softball team went to the College World Series.

The 1980s saw athletics at Utah continue hurtling into the big time. The women's gymnastics team won an unprecedented six straight national titles from 1981-86. The women's cross country team won the Division II AIAW Championship in 1981 (it joined the other Ute teams in Division I the following year). The softball team qualified for the 1982 and '85 NCAA College World Series. Also in 1983, skiing became a coed sport and Utah won the NCAA title—the first of five in the 1980s.

That across-the-board success helped establish the national reputation Utah has enjoyed since the early 1990s, when most Ute programs reached previously uncharted levels. The football team has played in a seven bowl games since 1992. In 1994, the Utes finished with a 10-2 record, a bowl win over Arizona and a Top-10 national ranking. They shared the conference title in 1995 and 1999. Utah won the 2003

MWC Championship—its first outright title since 1957—and played in the Liberty Bowl.

Two other fall sports have been flexing some muscle lately: The Ute volleyball team, which advanced to the NCAA second round from 1998-2000, made the Sweet Sixteen in 2001. The women's soccer team was an NCAA participant in 2002 and 2003.

Utah's winter sports have countered with their own success stories. Under Head Coach Rick Majerus, the men's basketball team was the NCAA runner-up in 1998, beating two No. 1 seeds (Arizona in the West Regional final and North Carolina in the NCAA semi-finals) before falling to Kentucky 78-69 in the championship game. In 1996-97, the Runnin' Utes made the Elite Eight and finished the year ranked No. 6. Majerus' Runnin' Utes have won 10 of the last 13 conference titles and made the NCAA second round last year.

The women's basketball team has also made its mark, winning six conference championships since 1995-96 and competing in the NCAA Tournament from 1996-98 and 2000-02. The women made the NCAA Sweet Sixteen in 2001, losing to eventual NCAA champion Notre Dame, and advanced to the second round last year.

But it is women's gymnastics that has the edge in Huntsman Center banners, with a record 10 national championship flags to its credit. Four of those banners came in the 1990s (1990, '92, '94 and '95). The Utes placed second to UCLA in 2000, were fifth in 2001 and fourth in 2002.

Outdoors, the defending NCAA champion Ute skiers won the 1993, '96 and '97 and 2003 NCAA Championships—raising their total to 11. The skiers finished second in 1994, 1995 and 1998.

Utah's achievements don't stop with the snowfall. The softball team qualified for the 1991 and 1994 College World Series and took fifth in the nation in 1994.

The momentum from the 1990s has carried into the new century. It's clear to see that the Utes aren't getting older—they're getting better.
