

WAKE FOREST GOLF Tradition

The ongoing tradition of Deacon golf arose from humble beginnings on a nine-hole course near the old campus in Wake Forest, N.C.

From its inception in 1933 until 1947, the Wake Forest golf program was composed simply of students interested in golf and received a limited amount of support from the athletic department. This arrangement changed, however, in 1947, when then-director of athletics Jim Weaver conceived the idea of promoting a sport in which Wake could excel on a regional and national basis. Weaver, Wake Forest part-time coach Johnny Johnston, and the first two recruits – Marvin “Buddy” Worsham and Arnold Palmer – would significantly change the Wake Forest program.

The latter’s ability and golf credentials are world-renowned, but his generous legacy to the Deacons is perhaps less well-known. Palmer, who attended Wake Forest from 1947-54 (he took some time away from the school to serve in the Coast Guard), endowed Wake with its first golf scholarship in 1960 in honor of close friend Worsham, who was killed in a 1950 automobile accident. The substantial financial backing, along with Palmer’s continuing involvement with the program, was crucial in the campaign to build the Demon Deacons’ reputation to the point at which it stands today.

Since Palmer’s time, over 20 golfers have passed through the program on to the PGA Tour, most of them under the tutelage of the great coach Jesse Haddock, who won three national titles at the helm of the Wake Forest program. With more Wake players continuing to break onto the Tour nearly each year, the generosity of these former Deacs, both monetarily and, perhaps more importantly, in gifts of their time, is an integral factor in the success of the program.

Weaver, a central figure in the Deacon golf program’s rise, later became the Atlantic Coast Conference’s first commissioner. Palmer is indisputably Wake Forest’s first and favorite golf legend, while Haddock – even in retirement – continues to spread the good word of Deacon golf far and wide, bringing the dreams of the early days to fruition with his unparalleled success. Today, Jerry Haas, a former Deacon player himself, carries on the great legacy of WFU golf as the program’s head coach.

And, in the words of Haddock, every Deacon golfer – past, present and future – is a caretaker of the tradition.

“Playing for Wake Forest is more than individual pride. You are inheriting something. You must add to it – you must contribute. The making of this program has depended on a lot of people – the Jay Sigels, the Arnold Palmers – and they are proud of it. They are proud of what they inherited. Everyone can make a contribution. Everyone earns the right to be proud of their part in Wake Forest golf.”

SIMPLY the Best

1975 Wake Forest Golf – the “Best College Team Ever”. That is what GolfWorld magazine proclaimed in its May 25, 2001 issue. The publication examined the history of collegiate golf and determined the 1975 dominating Demon Deacon squad ranked at the top. Wake Forest won seven tournaments that season and captured the school’s second straight NCAA championship with a decisive 33-stroke victory over second-place Oklahoma State, the most lopsided win in NCAA history. Some of the sport’s biggest names, such as Curtis Strange, Jay Haas and the legendary coach Jesse Haddock, were a part of that outstanding squad. It was a squad whose history-making feats nearly 30 years ago still place them as the best there ever was...

1974 NCAA CHAMPIONS

The Deacs were five strokes off the lead after each of the first two rounds, improved by one shot after the third and found themselves trailing the Florida Gators by four heading into the final day at the 1974 NCAA Championships, held at the Carlton Oaks Country Club in San Diego, Calif.

Coming on strong with a full-fledged team effort, the Deacs closed that to one stroke after nine; Wake Forest passed the Gators on the back nine and held a one-stroke lead as Curtis Strange and Florida's Gary Koch approached the 18th.

Strange's 18 not only determined the team title and clinched his one-stroke medalist win over Koch, but it will always be known as one of the finest moments in NCAA golf history. The golfers hit nearly identical drives. After Koch's second shot sailed to the back of the green, Strange's one-iron from 250 yards landed within seven feet of the pin. Strange sank his putt for the legendary eagle that secured the first NCAA golf team title for Wake Forest.

1975 NCAA CHAMPIONS

In what is considered the most dominant performance in NCAA championship history, Wake Forest's 33-stroke team title may sound easy until you realize that the Deacs led after three rounds by a potentially tenuous, by-no-means secure six strokes over Oklahoma State. Incredibly, they improved by 27 strokes over the final round in one of the best team golf exhibitions ever at Ohio State's Scarlet Course in 1975.

Beginning with a 70 by Jay Haas, an incredible tournament-best 67 by Curtis Strange, a 73 by Bob Byman and a 74 by David Thore, the Deacons became uncatchable. Haas battled hole-by-hole throughout the afternoon with Alabama's Jerry Pate, but the Deacon held off the Tide's best with a birdie on 14 and a three-foot par putt on 18 to take the individual national title, the fourth in Wake Forest history. Byman finished fourth individually.

1986 NCAA CHAMPIONS

The Deacons had "played themselves out of contention" for the NCAA title on their own Bermuda Run course. Or had they?

Trailing by 16 strokes and with four teams ahead of them heading into the final round, Coach Haddock's Deacs still waited until the back nine to pull off the miracle.

Down by 12 strokes, no one told them they weren't in contention, so the Demon Deacons played as if the championship was already theirs. Chris Kite led the charge and went five-under on the back nine to finish the day at 66, Billy Andrade and Len Mattiace scored 69, and Tim Straub contributed a 74. The team scored a 10-under total of 278 to beat Oklahoma State's Cowboys, featuring the phenomenal Scott Verplank, and win WFU's third NCAA title. Kite finished 13th individually, while Andrade and Mattiace placed 14th.

DEACON DETAILS

Wake Forest has captured more ACC team championships (18) and individual titles (20) than any other league school. Only four players in conference history have won two ACC individual titles, and two of those are from Wake Forest – Ronny Thomas (1959, '60) and Scott Hoch (1977, '78). Georgia Tech's David Duval (1991, '93), and Clemson's Charles Warren (1997, '98) are the only other ACC golfers who can claim this distinction.
