XAVIER’S ACADEMIC ADVANTAGE: A TRADITION OF ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE

• Xavier’s 7,000 students choose from 85 undergraduate majors in three colleges, 54 minors and 17 graduate programs, a doctorate program in psychology and three honors programs.
• The student/faculty ratio is 12:1 and the average class size is 22 students
• U.S. News & World Report has ranked Xavier among the top 10 Midwest Masters colleges and universities for 16 consecutive years, including third in the latest issue. Xavier is ranked among “The Best Colleges in America” by The Princeton Review.
• Xavier is included among Forbes listing of “America’s Top Colleges” in its annual rankings, including 16th among best colleges with Master’s degree programs.
• Xavier’s Williams College of Business is rated among the Best United States Business Schools by The Princeton Review.
• Xavier offers international study opportunities on six continents.

HIGH DEMANDS, HIGH STANDARDS...

• During the last 10 years, applications for admission to Xavier have increased more than 160%, including a record 9,305 for the class of 2014.
• Xavier’s freshman to sophomore retention rate is 87%, versus the national average of 75% for similar private colleges.
• Xavier’s latest Student-Athlete Graduation Success Rate, which was announced by the NCAA in October, is an impressive 94 percent.
• More than 400 companies request resumes from Xavier students each year. Of XU graduates who apply to medical school, 81% are accepted versus the national average of 46%.
EXCITEMENT AND GROWTH AROUND CAMPUS...

- Xavier University has undergone a tremendous transformation. Bishop Edward Fenwick Place, the new residence/dining hall complex, opened this August. It includes 535 beds in four towers, a new dining hall with a seating capacity of 725, a green roof and a large greenspace. Xavier’s residence halls are recognized as being among the best in the country, with nearly 56% of all full-time undergraduate students living on campus. The James E. Hoff, S.J. Academic Quad opened in fall 2010 at the corner of Ledgewood and Dana Avenues. It includes the Michael J. Conaton Learning Commons, a high-tech, highly social center for learning outside the classroom and Stephen and Dolores Smith Hall, a new hi-tech home for the Williams College of Business, which features the Fifth Third Trading Center, a Wall Street style trading room with 44 Bloomberg terminals. The Hoff Quad and the residence/dining hall complex were built to LEED Silver Standards.

- The Cintas Center, which opened in 2000, includes a 10,250-seat arena for men's and women's basketball and volleyball. The arena is used for Xavier commencement ceremonies and major campus events and is widely used for business and community events. Cintas Center is also home to the Schiff Conference Center.

- The Gallagher Student Center, a 24/7 student center with office and resource space for Xavier’s 100-plus student clubs and groups, a performing arts center, recreation areas and a variety of food outlets.

- Xavier’s entire campus, including residence halls, is completely wireless.

- Xavier was honored by the Professional Grounds Management Society as No. 1 in the country for urban university landscaping.

ELITE ATHLETICS AND ACADEMICS...

- Xavier saw three teams qualify for NCAA Tournament competition this past academic year, including men's basketball (sixth straight), women's basketball (fifth straight) and men's soccer. Men's tennis has earned NCAA berths three of the last four years. Baseball, men's golf, track and field, women's soccer and women's volleyball are among the other current Xavier sports that have recently earned spots or placed individuals in the NCAA field.

- Men’s basketball made its sixth straight NCAA Tournament appearance and its 10th in the last 11 years, including advancement to at least the NCAA Sweet 16 in three of the past four seasons, one of only five schools that can say that: Duke, Kansas, Michigan State, North Carolina and Xavier. XU made the Elite Eight in 2008 and 2004.

- In 2011, men’s basketball won the A-10 Regular Season Championship for the fifth consecutive year. In addition, women's basketball has won the A-10 regular season and/or tournament title in each of the last five years.

- The new NCAA Academic Progress Rates (APR) shows that Xavier student-athletes have continued their success in the classroom as well. Xavier's men's and women's tennis, women's golf, and volleyball earned a perfect APR, while men's swimming, women's cross-country, women's swimming, women's indoor track, and women's outdoor track earned scores of at least 996. Eight Xavier teams received scores in the top 25 of their respective sport: men's tennis, women's golf, women's tennis, volleyball, men's swimming, women's indoor track, women's outdoor track and women's swimming.
As president, Fr. Michael J. Graham, S.J., is leading Xavier University through its most ambitious expansion in the institution’s 180-year history.

Graham’s influence is demonstrated most recently by Bishop Edward Fenwick Place, the new dining and residential complex in the heart of campus across from Bellamine Chapel. This eco-friendly building includes a green roof and a dining hall that seats nearly twice as many as the former facility. In 2010, Graham oversaw the opening of the James E. Hoff, S.J., Academic Quad, which includes the state-of-the-art Conaton Learning Commons and Smith Hall, home to the Williams College of Business.

In addition to guiding the University through a major expansion, Graham has shepherded Xavier’s spiritual growth during his tenure. Since becoming president on Jan. 1, 2001, Graham has invigorated Xavier’s Jesuit tradition of serving society by educating students intellectually, morally, and spiritually, with rigor and compassion, toward lives of solidarity, service, and success. Under his leadership, Xavier has established an academic vision, increased the number of full-time faculty, enhanced interdisciplinary study and expanded academic service learning and study abroad.

Fulfilling his vision of the “University as Citizen,” Graham initiated the Community Building Institute and established the James and Delrose Eigel Center for Community Engaged Learning. Through these centers, Xavier is partnering with local and regional organizations and Xavier faculty, students, and staff are becoming more active citizens and participants in the community.

Under Graham, Xavier embarked and completed a campaign to revolutionize the student learning experience. The result was the Hoff Quad, with focuses on academic excellence, integrated learning, the most current technology and outside-the-classroom experiences.

Graham’s association with Xavier began in 1984, when he joined the University’s faculty as an assistant professor of history. He left Xavier to pursue a master of divinity from The Weston School of Theology, which he earned in 1988. Graham earned a PhD in American Studies from the University of Michigan in 1983 and also holds degrees in philosophy and psychology. Born in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Graham entered the Society of Jesus in 1978 and was ordained a priest in 1988.

Graham returned to Xavier in 1989 and has remained at the University since. In 1994, Graham was appointed vice president for the Division of University Relations and in 1999, executive assistant to then-President James E. Hoff. In these roles, Graham oversaw a broad range of University activities, which included a $125 million capital campaign, the most ambitious and successful fundraising campaign in Xavier’s history at that time.

As a parish priest active at Good Shepherd Catholic Church in suburban Cincinnati and with Xavier student groups, Graham carries out his Jesuit pastoral activities as celebrant for weddings, baptisms, and retreats as well as weekly Sunday worship. Graham also serves on the boards of St. Xavier High School, Center for Holocaust Education at Hebrew Union College and United Way of Greater Cincinnati, as well as the Loyola of Chicago University Board of Trustees and the Atlantic 10 Presidents Council.

"I'm a priest and I'm a teacher," says Graham. "My gifts and experience intersect with Xavier University at this particular moment in time in such a way that I think I'll be able to contribute is enhanced sense of the University’s excellence as a university, per se, and as a distinctly Jesuit-Catholic university.”

The photos show Fr. Graham introducing U.S. Speaker of the House John Boehner (Xavier ’77) at an XU basketball game, giving David West (XU ’03) his XU Hall of Fame trophy last Fall and cheering for XU in the NCAA Basketball Championship.
The influence of Fr. James E. Hoff, S.J., will never be forgotten. The former chancellor and president of Xavier University died on July 23, 2004 at the age of 72 after a four-month battle with cancer.

"Jim Hoff raised the bar at Xavier and set a tone that pushed the University and all of us associated with it, to dream big and strive to be better," Michael J. Graham, S.J., president of Xavier, said, adding, "He set the example—academically, spiritually, athletically, in every way, of how to do things right and we will continue to follow his example."

Hoff’s spirit and passion for Xavier is immortalized in the University's hallmark academic facility named after him. The James E. Hoff, S.J. Academic Quadrangle, which opened in fall 2010, is a dynamic academic complex that enables Xavier to meet the learning needs of 21st century students. Xavier is a leader among colleges and universities for successfully blending the technological and academic resources and services that enhance learning with the Conaton Learning Commons. It provides students the facilities, technologies and services to help them master essential skills and gain a competitive advantage in their respective disciplines and careers. This high-tech, highly social center for learning outside the classroom serves as a hallmark for Xavier's future and is recognized as a unique facility within American higher education.

The Quad also includes Smith Hall, which serves as home for the nationally recognized Williams College of Business. Classrooms equipped with rich, robust technology, a Bloomberg trading center and program centers are integrated to enhance teaching and learning.

The Quad is a fitting tribute to a man who oversaw tremendous transformation of Xavier's campus, academic quality and national reputation while serving as president from March 1991 to December 2000. Hoff's vision for the University, what he called his most important legacy, became a mantra for the entire campus: "to prepare students intellectually, spiritually and morally to take their place in a rapidly changing global society and work for the betterment of that society."

During Hoff’s presidency, the University raised $125 million in the largest capital campaign at that time in school history, nearly quadrupled the endowment and raised the funds to build Cintas Center. Hoff oversaw new construction and the renovation of existing buildings and added green space to change the look and feel of the entire campus.
Associate Vice President Mike Bobinski

is in his 12th year as Xavier’s Director for Athletics, coming off another year that was filled with tremendous accomplishments and progress for Xavier’s broad-based athletic program of 18 NCAA Division I sports. Bobinski has plenty of reasons to smile about the success stories in the department.

It’s not a coincidence that Bobinski’s passion for success has rubbed off on the Xavier athletic program. It has shown up in impressive results in competition and in the classroom. Xavier’s latest graduation success rate is an impressive 94 percent. XU had 95 student-athletes honored on the Atlantic 10 Conference Academic Honor Roll in the spring of 2011, which followed up having 83 student-athletes honored on the A-10 Honor Roll in the fall of 2010.

The NCAA Academic Progress Rates (APR) announced in May show that Xavier student-athletes have continued their success in the classroom. Xavier’s men’s and women’s tennis, women’s golf, and volleyball earned a perfect APR, while men’s swimming, women’s cross country, men’s swimming, women’s indoor track, and women’s outdoor track earned scores of at least 996. Eight Xavier teams received scores in the top 25 of their respective sport: men’s tennis, women’s golf, women’s tennis, volleyball, men’s swimming, women’s indoor track, women’s outdoor track and women’s swimming.

During Bobinski’s tenure as athletic director, nine Xavier teams have earned 37 team or individual spots in NCAA Championship competition, including the baseball, men’s basketball, women’s basketball, men’s golf, rifle, men’s tennis, men’s and women’s soccer and women’s volleyball teams. In addition, Xavier has sent individual standouts to NCAA Championship competition in track and field. In the same time span, Xavier teams have captured 24 Atlantic 10 Conference Championships. Men’s basketball made its sixth straight NCAA Tournament appearance and women’s basketball made its fifth straight appearance in March.

During Bobinski’s 11 years as Athletic Director, Xavier basketball has enjoyed tremendous national success. In men’s basketball, Xavier has averaged 25 wins over those 11 years while making the 2004 and 2008 NCAA Tournament Elite Eight and the 2009 and 2010 Sweet 16. Men’s basketball had one of its student-athletes earn All-America honors for the second straight season, while in May the program is on target to extend its streak to 85 straight seniors that have graduated. Women’s basketball made runs to the NCAA Elite Eight in 2001 and again in 2010. This past season, women’s basketball had two student-athletes earn All-America status and achieved its highest national ranking in program history at No. 4.

Bobinski, who is in the fourth year of a five-year term on the NCAA Division I Men’s Basketball Committee, came to Xavier in 1998 as Athletic Director and served in that position until moving to the development office in June of 2004.

As associate vice president for development from 2004-06, Bobinski oversaw all fund-raising efforts for Xavier including annual and planned giving, major gifts, grant services and internal operations. Bobinski returned to athletics in 2006.

In 2009, Bobinski hired Chris Mack as men’s basketball head coach. He also hired Thad Matta as head men’s basketball coach in 2001 and Sean Miller as Xavier’s first associate head coach. Matta is now head coach at Ohio State and Miller has since taken over as head coach at Arizona. Bobinski also hired former women’s basketball coach Kevin McGuff, who spent nine years at Xavier before leaving for Washington earlier this year. He also oversaw the opening of Cintas Center.

Bobinski came to intercollegiate athletics more than 25 years ago from the business world, not the playing field or coaching arena. Before coming to Xavier he was the athletic director at the University of Akron, and prior to that, was the associate director of athletics at the U.S. Naval Academy. Before moving to the Naval Academy, Bobinski, 53, was associate and assistant business manager at the University of Notre Dame from 1984 to 1989. A native of Yaphank on Long Island, N.Y., Bobinski received his bachelor of business administration from Notre Dame in 1979, graduating magna cum laude, while playing four years for the Fighting Irish baseball team.

As a licensed certified public accountant, he first went into accounting with Deloitte, Haskins and Sell and Arthur Young & Company from 1979-82. He also worked for the Walt Disney Company in Orlando from 1982-84 before moving into college athletics at UND in 1984.

Bobinski has two children, Melissa, 24, a 2009 Xavier graduate, and Brian, 22, who is a junior at Ohio State.

Why Musketeers?

The Tradition

The Musketeer concept was based on the suggestion of the late Reverend Francis J. Finn, S.J., a member of the Xavier University Board of Trustees for many years until his death in 1928. In response to a directive from the Trustees, Father Finn proposed the name Musketeers in 1925. It was adopted and has been a Xavier designation ever since.

In naming the Musketeers, Father Finn was not only giving rebirth to a concept of chivalry that is among France’s most treasured traditions, but he was also providing permanent recognition to Xavier’s strong ties with French origins and culture.

The first priest, and one of the first Europeans to navigate the Ohio River past the site that was to become Cincinnati, was a Jesuit from French Canada named the Rev. Joseph Pierre de Bonnecamps. He was a scientist and mathematician from the College of Quebec who made the trip in 1749. Numerous historical accounts credit him with creating the first map of Ohio’s boundaries.

Among the first students at Xavier in the decade of the 1830’s were French-speaking young men from Louisiana who were forbidden by the college regulations to use their family tongue during recreation lest they fail to learn the English language.

The first Jesuit Priest of Xavier, in 1840, was Father John Anthony Elet, a native of the French-speaking provinces of Belgium.

The great patron of the University, St. Francis Xavier, a native of Spain, received his university education at the College of St. Barbe at the University of Paris and he helped found the Jesuit Order in Paris in 1540.

So, as Father Finn reasoned, the Musketeer, a dedicated guard of the King of France, was a fine symbol of the qualities that should inspire the students and particularly the athletic teams at Xavier University.

Xavier Mascots

D’Artagnan serves as the official mascot of the Xavier University athletic teams. The legendary mascot has gone through many changes over the years, but his powerful presence remained when the most recent version of the Musketeer was unveiled at the start of the 2004-05 basketball season.

The Blue Blob serves as a secondary mascot for the Xavier University athletic teams. The Blob is well known for being able to excite the crowd and is a favorite among the younger Musketeer fans. The Blue Blob has even been featured on SportsCenter, including a main role in a series of ESPN SportsCenter commercials. He is also a hit with the Junior Musketeers Club.
